THE EAST.

Arrangements for General Grant's Funeral Nearly Completed.

THE INDIANAPOLIS INVESTIGATION.

Heavy Defalcation in a Buffalo Bank—Two Men and a Woman Hanged in the South—Events in the Sporting World.

[Both wires to the east were down last night, and only an abridged report could be sent via San Francisco.]

MT MCGREGOR, July 31.—A considerable number of people came to the mountain to-day to view the remains of the dead general. The expression of the face remains very natural.

A magnificent floral memorial was received at the Grant cottage this evening from Ex-Governor Leland Stanford of California and Mrs. Stanford, representing the "Gates Ajar," composed of two gates six feet high by five feet wide, constructed of white and purple immortelles, spanned by an arch inscribed with the name "U. S. Grant," and with a flight of steps ascending to the half opened gates.

The programme of the services for Tuesday is as follows: Scripture reading, Ninetieth psalm; prayer by Rev. Bishop Harris of the Methodist Episcopal church, New York; "My faith looks up to thee;" discourse by Rev. J. P. Newman; hymn, "Nearer My God to Thee;" benediction; contralto solo, "Beyond the Smiling and the Weeping."

ARRANGEMENTS AT WASHINGTON.

NEW YORK, July 31.—Arrangements for General Grant's funeral so far as relate to General Hancock's division are nearly completed. H. A. Sedilus of Washington wrote suggesting that a detail of 100 men from each regiment that served under Grant be present in the procession. Sergeant-at-Arms C. W. P. Canaday telegraphed that the vice president and a committee from the senate would attend the obsequies. Colonel G. S. Gillespie, U. S. A., General George B. M. Havarty and Brevet Brigadier General T. F. Rodenbaugh of Bath, Maine, were appointed additional aides. Colonel Roger Jones has been telegraphed to fire minute guns at Saratoga during the progress of the funeral train.

INVITED TO THE FUNERAL.

MT MCGREGOR, N. Y.

The undersigned respectfully invites all ex-members of his father's cabinet to attend the obsequies to be held on the 8th proximo in New York. Gentlemen accepting this invitation are respectfully requested to advise General Hancock of their intention to be present, who will assign them appropriate places in the procession.

FRED D. GRANT.

GENERAL GRANT'S SWORDS AND UNIFORMS.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Referring to regrets that have been expressed in some quarters that General Grant is not to be buried in his uniform with one of his swords by his side, and to the supposition that none of his uniforms or swords are available for that purpose because they were all turned over to the government some months ago, with his other military relics, Adjutant General Drum said to-day that any or all of them are at the disposal of Mrs. Grant while they remain in the war department awaiting the action of congress.

GRANT'S BIRTHPLACE.

NEW YORK, July 31.—Captain James Coogan of this city is negotiating for the purchase of the house at Point Pleasant, Ohio, in which General Grant was born, with a view of having it set up in Central Park. He offers $5,000 for it. The owner, Michael L. Hirsch, wants $10,000.

EASTERN NEWS ITEMS.

THE INDIANAPOLIS INVESTIGATION.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 31.—The investigation of the acts of Postmaster Jones was continued by Civil Service Commissioner Thoman and Chief Examiner Lyman to-day. During the day statements were made by both the prosecution and the defense, but the examination is conducted privately. Several of the witnesses examined to-day were men who either failed to pass examination or who had been removed from positions in the office. The action of the local board of examiners is being investigated with great care, and Messrs. Thoman and Lyman have taken possession of all examination papers and records. Particular attention is being paid to the cases of Woods and Wilmington, discharged register clerks, whose places were filled by Byfield and Browning, who had satisfactorily passed examination. It is understood that the independent committee will press the other charges of making unworthy appointments and insufficiency and incapacity of some of the new appointees before the president after the commissioners have made their report, and particular effort will be made to prove that Captain Dodd, assistant postmaster, is not a proper person to hold his present position, also that he and Mr. Ben Jones were paid large salaries at the expense of subordinates, who either had their wages reduced or were discharged. The investigation was practically completed to-day, and Thoman left to-night for Washington. Lyman remains to give attention to some unimportant details.

ANOTHER STRIKE AT CLEVELAND.

CLEVELAND, July 31.—Three hundred men and boys employed in the Lake Erie Bolt Works went out on a strike this morning, on account of a 10 per cent. reduction in wages. The reduction was made several days ago, and the men finally decided they would not stand it, as they had accepted a 10 per cent. cut about a year ago. Only the bolt makers, nut makers and boys struck. The wages of the machinists are not affected, and they wished to continue work, but were forced out by the others. The works are now idle, and the superintendent announces that the works will not be put in operation until the employes accept the proposed reduction.

GENERAL SHERIDAN'S MISSION.

CHICAGO, July 31.—General Sheridan arrived from the west this morning and will leave direct for Washington this afternoon. The general is in excellent health. Concerning the troubles in Indian territory he said he had expressed no opinion, and while he had settled views respecting the Indian question they would be expressed only to the president in person, as that was in the main the mission upon which he had been sent. Any expressions which had been credited to him concerning the situation were unauthorized and unfounded.

SUIT FOR DAMAGES.

LOUISVILLE, July 31.—Several months ago a masked body of men visited the house of Professor P. J. Slocum, a school teacher near Horse Cave, Kentucky. Slocum fired into the crowd and killed three of them. Slocum to-day filed a suit for $5,200 against nineteen of the best citizens of Hart county, charging them with conspiracy to drive him out of the country.

BOUND TO DIE.

DENVER, July 31.—At Leadville at noon to-day William Nell, a former resident of St. Louis, employed in the Telephone mine, committed suicide in a most novel manner. Complaining of being ill, Nell came to the cabin, lay down on the floor, placed a stick of giant powder with a cap and fuse attached under his head, and while in this position lighted the fuse. The shot blew his head entirely from his body.

STRIKE THREATENED.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 31.—Serious trouble is expected on this division of the New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio railroad by the company ruling double header freights. A meeting of the employes has been called for Sunday in Cleveland, and they will insist on one more brakeman on each train or strike.

PRIZE FIGHT.

PITTSBURG, July 31.—This morning at an early hour John Beck and Philip Bolger, local pugilists, fought eleven rounds with hard gloves for a purse of $500. The fight took place in a barn ten miles from the city and resulted in the defeat of Bolger, who was knocked out and terribly punished.

TELEGRAPH PROPERTY SOLD AT AUCTION.

NEW YORK, July 31.—The property of the Bankers' and Merchants' Telegraph Company was sold to-day at public auction. It brought $500,000 and was purchased by Edward S. Stokes on behalf of the reorganization committee.

WATER FAMINE.

ASHLAND, PA., July 31.—The water famine still prevails in this neighborhood and is growing worse every day. The dam which supplies Ashland with water will not last till Monday. There is much excitement.

DEATH OF STANLEY HUNTLEY.

THE WEEK'S FAILURES.

NEW YORK, July 31.—Business failures the last seven days number 201, as against [illegible] last week [illegible] the week previous to last.

A TRIPLE HANGING.

Two Men and a Woman, All Colored, Executed for the Murder of a Widow.

FRANKLIN, LA., July 31.—George Wilson, Charles Davis and Mathilda Jones, all colored, were executed here to-day for the murder and robbery of Mrs. Harriet Cole in this town on the night of January last. Wilson was captured in Memphis a few weeks later, and before the trial made a voluntary confession giving the names of his accomplices. The principal witness against the prisoners was a little colored girl servant of Mrs. Cole at the time of the murder. She heard the murderers conspire to rob her mistress, and gave them information about Mrs. Cole's money and jewelry, and saw them with the jewelry in their possession after the murder. The conspirators entered Mrs. Cole's dwelling, strangled her to death and robbed the house of money, diamonds and other valuables. She was the widow of the late Judge James L. Cole, and was highly esteemed.

Wilson was baptized yesterday. He seemed resigned to his fate, said he was ready to go, and acknowledged the justice of his sentence. Davis declared he was innocent, but ready to die. The prisoners did not sleep at all. Mathilda Jones said this morning that she was ready to die and thought she would go to heaven. She appeared quite cheerful, and did not allude to the crime. On the scaffold she was extremely nervous, and after saying good bye to all and while shouting and singing gave way completely and fell from the scaffold just as the black cap was drawn over her face. This displaced the ropes somewhat, and it required two strokes by the executioner to cut them. The necks of Davis and Wilson were broken and the woman died from strangulation.

Fully 5000 people were gathered about the court house and grounds. Davis was a little nervous and Wilson seemed to take it coolly. When the woman fainted she fell against Davis, and then off the gallows. Davis lost his balance, and caught hold of the ropes to the right, which held the trap, and was in that position when the trap fell at 1:45, Wilson standing coolly all the time. After the trap fell the ropes of the woman and Davis twisted together. The woman got her hands loose in her struggling and grasped at everything in reach. She was known as the wife of Davis. They both said they were innocent of the crime. Life was declared extinct fourteen minutes after the trap fell.

Mr. Edwards, president of the association, telegraphed W. H. Vanderbilt last night that he believed Maud S. could trot in [illegible]. To-day Vanderbilt wired the following from Saratoga: "Wm. Edwards, Cleveland: Wonderful mare! I congratulate Mr. Bonner, you, the mare, Mr. Bair and all hands. May she yet do what you predict."

No information has yet been received from Bonner as to the future movements of the mare.

A BOLD CHALLENGE.

DETROIT, July 31.—The well known sporting man Ed. H. Gillman issues a challenge to any oarsman in the world, and especially to Beach of Australia, to row Hanlan on the Detroit river for any distance and at any time agreed upon, for $5000 a side. Gillman will put up $500 or $1000 forfeit with any reliable newspaper in the United States, and will put up the whole $5000 before Beach leaves Australia, if necessary.

CRIMINAL CALENDAR.

DEFICIENCY IN A BUFFALO BANK.

BUFFALO, July 31.—Many rumors have been circulated for the past few days of a deficiency in the accounts of the late Henry Conover, assistant cashier of the Manufacturers' and Traders' bank of this city, who died suddenly Friday last. Officers of the bank this afternoon furnished the following for publication: "Mr. Conover had charge of a responsible department of the bank, in which department the errors appeared. His death deprived the bank of his assistance in examining the books or reconciling the errors. Officers of the bank have been obliged to make an examination of the books under very disadvantageous circumstances, but it develops the fact that abstractions of the bank's property have been made from time to time dating back several years and aggregating $74,000, which is probably lost. The examination justifies us in saying that the soundness of the bank is unaffected and its capital of $500,000 unimpaired, and that there is considerable surplus in addition."

HANGED AT LAST.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, July 31.—Valentine Wagner, a German of Morrow county, was executed at the Ohio penitentiary this morning for killing his brother-in-law, Daniel Sheehan, in December, [illegible]. This was the first hanging to take place at the Ohio penitentiary under the new law requiring that all executions in the state shall take place at the prison. The trouble between Wagner and Sheehan was of long standing and of a family nature, and on the date named Wagner went to Sheehan's house and told him he had come to kill him, and immediately drew a revolver and shot him, and fired again when he tried to escape. The trials were long and tedious, the supreme court affirming the judgment of the lower court and the circuit court also affirming the judgment of common pleas and fixing the day of execution for July 31. The governor had been sought to interfere on all manner of grounds, but refused to do so after making a complete study of the case.

DYNAMITE OUTRAGE.

DENVER, July 31.—The incoming passenger train due here at 3:30 this evening exploded a dynamite cartridge about two and a half miles south of the city. The engine and tender were badly wrecked and one length of the track was torn out, but the passengers were uninjured. The explosion was distinctly heard for a radius of [illegible] miles. Popular belief is that the outrage was the work of strikers.

ACCIDENTS.

SEVERAL MEN KILLED AND INJURED.

NEW YORK, July 31.—Nine men got into a bucket to-day to be hauled to the top of a shaft connecting with the new Croton aqueduct. When sixty feet up the bucket caught on a projection and tipped. Four men were thrown out. Two clung to the bucket, but the other two, William Cunningham and Timothy Harrington, were dashed to death. Of the men who clasped the bucket, John Carr had his left thigh broken and his scalp injured in several places, and William Ryan suffered injuries about the head besides probable internal wounds.

GERMANY.

MISS NEVADA TO BE MARRIED.

BERLIN, July 30.—The Berliner Musik Zeitung announces the engagement of Miss Nevada to Charles Hille. Mrs. Mackay will place her house in Paris at the disposal of Miss Nevada for the marriage, and will provide a wedding breakfast.

The Boots of Boyhood.

Shoe and Leather Review.

Those dear little red top boots! Do you remember them, the first pair you wore? You can close your eyes and see them again—stiff and thick and heavy soled. And what points of beauty in your eyes were those red tops and bright copper toes. The memory of them brings you back to that period in your life where infancy passed into boyhood, and where dreams came to you of being a man. They marked the beginning of your independence, of your strength, of your recognition as one of earth's creatures. Far better they brought the cessation of ridicule, for they came with pants and [illegible] in place of dresses and curls. How often have you gone sobbing to your mother, your heart full of grief and mortification, because a bigger boy had pulled your hair and called you a girl. The changes came all at once. Mother made the pants one evening, father brought home the red top boots. Then she took the scissors into your soft curls, cut them off, kissed them and laid them away. She was sorry to see the baby become a boy, but how our soul swelled! How you longed for the morning, that you might wear them. How joyfully you cried out to little Billy Brown across the road that you had pants and boots. And Billy probably answered sullenly, "I don't care," while all the time he was filled with envy.

How changed was your spirit after this. You were no longer shy. You no longer played with the little girls. You stuffed the pockets of your pants full of strings and nails and was imbued with a desire to fight and throw stones. You waded brooks in all the puddles and proudly assured the other boys that the boots didn't leak a bit.

Dear little boots. We revere your memory. You are to the boy what the sweetheart is to the youth, what the bride is to the man. Who would not turn back the wheel of time and again embrace you?

Five Steamship Companies Decline to Carry Mails.

VILAS PUBLISHES A STATEMENT.

He Declares that the Companies are Unreasonable in their Demands—Indian Troubles Threatened in Idaho—Coast Notes.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Five American steamship companies, the Pacific Mail, San Francisco to Australia; the Red D, New York to Venezuela; the Clyde, New York to Turk's island; the New York, Havana and Mexico, and the New York and Cuba line—have declined to carry United States mails after to-day. Commenting upon this action, Postmaster General Vilas to-day said: "Central American steamship lines, probably under the lead of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, have entered into a combination apparently for the purpose of forcing the distribution amongst them of $400,000 appropriated by congress for mileage compensation for carrying mails. Some of them wrote to the postoffice department desiring to know what terms would be given. I proposed to each of the companies to go to the full limit the law would allow, and award them both sea and inland postage. This is about three times what they had been receiving for the same service during the past twelve years. It is three times what is paid for carriage across the Atlantic, and probably in most cases all that should be paid for carrying mails. The companies were still acting in concert, and in consequence of their combination refused to accept these terms, which were so liberal compared with those they had received that they felt, I suppose, that they could drive the government out of the position it had taken by refusing to carry for the compensation offered. The companies seemed to think that if they refused to carry mails there would be no other course left to the government but to make contracts with them and distribute the $400,000 accordingly. A complete schedule for transportation of mails will be arranged and they will go with very little difference in point of time to their destination. The statement has been made in newspapers to the effect that the government is not as liberal as Great Britain in compensation of steamship lines. The fact is the rate which has been offered over these lines very much exceeds the rate paid by Great Britain. The rate we offer is about 60 per cent. more than British lines receive from their government. It was a rate unjustifiably far more than ought to be paid, but the government deemed it fair to go to the utmost length which the law and reason allowed in order to avoid any difficulty with American steamship companies until congress should meet. The department has made such arrangements that the public will suffer no inconvenience worthy of mention in respect to the carrying of mails, and in some cases, notably the Cuban service, the mails will be expedited."

The superintendent of foreign mails said the American companies had refused an offer of $1.60 per pound for carrying mails. This is what is known as combined sea and inland postage, and is equivalent to $3200 per ton. They receive at present the international rate of 44 cents per pound.

Mail for other points on the steamer's route may, however, be received at the steamship company's office and forwarded as usual.

Nine Pipes and Aleck were killed to-day by a returned hostile. The trouble was about some property. Hostiles have been on Salmon river threatening trouble. A very uneasy feeling exists among the people on the prairies, they fearing an uprising of the tribes." In a letter from Grangeville, it was said that a brother of one of the murdered Indians came there and wanted to buy a pistol to slay his brother's murderer. There is great excitement.

POLITICAL EXPRESSION.

Boston Advertiser (Mug.): Most truly the president was right in saying the work of reform must begin with the democratic party.

The Richmond, Va., State (Dem.) rejoices over the fact that more postmasters have been removed in Virginia than in any other state.

The mugwump Boston Herald's political phonograph grinds out a solid chunk of truth when he says that "the democratic party is in need of reform."

The Washington correspondent of the New York Times refers to the eight democratic congressmen in Virginia who "are distributing patronage." Is this civil service reform?

New York Sun: Of course the democrats who don't get the offices can be just as lively as ever. That is where Colonel Grosvenor thinks they will have a great advantage.

New York World: As usual the New York Sun is cultivating the democratic party in the "off" season and tendering a vast amount of unsolicited advice to the party managers in this state.

New York Sun: Our idea of a good government is that it should undertake nothing that can be as well or better done by other agencies. The new ornithological bureau seems wholly unnecessary.

Chicago Tribune: The dose being fixed up in Iowa of equal parts of democracy, greenbackism, prohibition, license and free whisky might cure cholera, but it will never elect a democratic governor.

The kind of a man the Richmond Dispatch wants the Virginia democrats to nominate for attorney general is one who isn't afraid to go into the United States supreme court and uphold repudiation.

Chicago Tribune: If Secretary Whitney loses his present job we commend him to her majesty's ship-builders as the man who has accomplished more for them than any one man has ever done in a single month.

General Stockton, Secretary Kelsey and the editor of the Trenton True American deny that there is any truth in the statement that a reconciliation has been effected between the Democratic leaders of New Jersey.

John P. St. John wrote to Professor Calderwood of Ohio September 30, 1881, saying: "The prohibitionists of Ohio are hurting the good cause of temperance by affiliating with the worst enemy temperance ever had—the democratic party."

In the opinion of Senator Beck of Kentucky, "Senator John Sherman is a great man. I think Edmunds is a greater lawyer, but I don't think he has the breadth of view and the grasp for the many problems of American policy that Sherman has."

Don Cameron on the third term movement in 1880—"If we could have had the promise of a single postoffice we could have nominated Grant. But we never had a word from him, and up to the very last none of us knew whether he would accept the nomination if it should be made."

St. Louis Republican (Dem.): Mr. Roswell P. Flower enters the race for the democratic nomination for governor of New York as a reformer of the school of Jefferson, Jackson and Tilden. Not having heard from Mr. Manning on the subject we are as yet uninformed how fast or far Mr. Flower will run.

Wheeling Intelligencer: The nominee in Virginia is a talented young man of great dash who will force the fighting. If "our friends the enemy" will kindly abstain from loading the ballot-boxes with democratic ballots before the polls open, John S. will have a good chance to be the second Governor Wise of Virginia.

New York Tribune: The fact that John Roach's bid for the Dolphin and the three cruisers were $315,000 below any other contractor's seems to dispose of the charge that he was bent upon plundering the government. His enemies, however, are equal to the emergency. Seizing the bull by the horns, they affirm that this very discrepancy between his bids and those of his competitors proves that he had no intention of honestly fulfilling his contract.

Boston Herald: If the democrats who are rebelling against the reform policy of the administration really believe what they say as to the sentiment of their party on this question, they will put their faith to a practical test. Let them, as the Washington Post suggests, elect the amiable Higgins doorkeeper of the house. And let them follow this up by nominating a Tammany spoilsman for governor of New York, a representative of the McLean democracy for governor of Ohio and a prominent kicker to head the state ticket in Massachusetts.

New York Tribune: Mr. Roach's retirement from business is strictly in line with democratic policy. He closes his works and yards, discharges workmen receiving $30,000 a week, and leaves a large force of industrious skilled mechanics to shift for themselves. He is forced to do this partly because the times have been hard ever since the election in November, but mainly because the administration has been dealing unfairly with him for partisan ends of its own. The assignment increases the feeling of depression caused originally by the success of a party committed to the policy of free ships and revenue tinkering.

Philadelphia Bulletin: The calamity may well be called a national one, for the shipyards of John Roach represented on a grand scale the idea of American industry and enterprise as it is represented nowhere else, and to close these great works means not only the ruin of John Roach, and not only the scattering of his thousands of workmen with all the distress that such a catastrophe implies. It means a tremendous blow at the whole great system of protected American industry, from which this branch of it can not recover until an American congress and an American administration rise to the level of the great issues which are now being repudiated at Washington.

SOME OF GRANT'S SAYINGS.

Let us have peace.

Go in. (to Sheridan)

Let no guilty man escape.

Whichever party attacks now will whip.

It's too late to dodge after the balls have passed.

We must cut our way to the Gulf with our swords.

I propose to fight it out on this line if it takes all summer.

I cannot afford to quarrel with a man whom I have to command.

If a man has a hell outside of him it ought to be a heaven within.

Before Vicksburg: "We are whipping them beautifully. Hurry up the troops."

I am willing to be judged by my acts, but not to have them misrepresented or falsified.

"There are few men really competent to command a thousand men. I doubt if I am one."

"The good opinion of my countrymen is dearer to me than the praise of all the world beside."

"There is not a sufficiency of Union sentiment in this portion of the state (Tennessee) to save Sodom."

"I have nothing to do with opinions and shall deal only with armed rebellion and its aiders and abettors."

"No terms other than an unconditional surrender can be accepted. I propose to move immediately upon your works."

"I was educated by the government. If my knowledge and experience can be of any service I offer them."

"The stability of this government and the unity of this nation depend solely on the cordial support and the earnest loyalty of the people."

"No theory of my own will ever stand in the way of my executing in good faith any order I may receive from those in authority over me."

To his soldiers, in response to a call for a speech: "Soldiers, thank you. You have done a good day's work to-day, but you must do a better one to-morrow."

"You might as well attempt to put out the flames of a burning house with a squirt gun. You ought to organize the whole military power of the north for a desperate struggle."

"I don't know anything about making speeches; that is not in my line; but we are forming a company in Galena and mean to do what we can for putting down the rebellion."

Grant to Sherman before the fall of Vicksburg: "They seem to put a good deal of faith in the Lord and Joe Johnston, but you must whip Johnston at least fifteen miles from here."

Complimented on his strategy, Grant replied: "Oh, I don't know much about that. I had as many men as I wanted, and I simply pounded away and I pounded them down."

At Shiloh an officer asked him: "What preparations have you made for retreating, general?" To which the quiet, impassive man responded: "I have not despaired of whipping them yet."

To McPherson: "Mac, you know your whisky won't help me to think; give me a dozen of the best cigars you can find, and if the ladies will excuse me for smoking, I think by the time I have finished them I shall have this job pretty nearly planned."

Buell reproached Grant at the battle of Shiloh for his poor provisions for retreat in case of defeat, saying that his steamboats would not have carried away 10,000 men. "Well," was the answer, "there wouldn't have been more than that left by the time I should have got ready to go."

FOREIGN DISPATCHES

A Tory Organ Attacks Lord Randolph Churchill.

NEWS AND GOSSIP FROM LONDON.

LONDON, July 31.—The Standard, which is an accepted tory organ, uses the following language in its attack on Lord Randolph Churchill, leader of the conservative party: "To speak plainly, Lord Randolph Churchill has been puffed in the press with admirable assiduity by a well organized clique, which is always ready to cry prodigious whenever he opens his mouth, but it is all in vain. The Liverpool incident shows the extent of the alarm which Churchill's blundering and blustering have inspired within the bosom of his party. It were a thousand times better that the conservatives should be again in opposition than that they should be exposed to the humiliation of such things as Churchill's attacks on Earl Spencer's government of Ireland. Unless the government disavows these attacks it will feel the bad effects in the future more seriously than it has yet contemplated. The truth is Lord Churchill has been much overrated. If his pranks be encouraged longer he will smash the government and the conservative party. We will follow Salisbury, but we will not follow this overgrown school boy, without knowledge sufficient to fathom his own ignorance of statesmanship. It is a common saying that Lord Churchill is equally radical with Joseph Chamberlain, and the popular estimate is not far wrong."

AGGRAVATED CASES OF CRIME.

LONDON, July 31.—The papers continue to be full of aggravated cases of sexual vice and crime. To-day an eminent doctor was committed for trial for assaulting a female patient only 13 years old. A. T[illegible]eghorn, a priest, has been arrested for carrying on a business of procuration under the guise of charity. He hired a building and had it opened with religious ceremonies as a home for young orphan girls, and then scoured the streets for female children, whom he brought to the orphanage, promising to provide them with permanent homes or situations. From time to time the prettiest girls were sent to places remote from London, ostensibly to enter the service of some wealthy family as nurse maids and seamstresses. It is now charged that these girls were systematically sold to professional procurers in other cities.

NEW YORK, July 31.—Senor Becerra, minister to this country from the United States of Colombia, has received the following telegram from Panama:

"Barranquilla has been taken by the forces of the national government and that port will soon be open to commerce. Prestan, who since his escape from Aspinwall after its surrender to the national troops has been operating with the rebels at Barranquilla, was made prisoner and will be tried for the part he has taken in the rebellion."

Senor Becerra was seen to-night and added the following information: "General Santa Domingo, with the national troops, has at length succeeded in procuring a number of steamers with which to pursue the enemy up the rivers. General Camargo, who commanded the rebels, is already in custody and will be immediately tried and sentenced. There are no leaders left who are able to do anything with the remaining shattered forces of the rebels. The war, although a small one comparatively speaking, has been a costly one. Since receiving the above dispatch I have had several confirmatory dispatches from Carthagena and Colon."

CANADA.

THE RIEL TRIAL.

REGINA, July 30.—In the Riel trial to-day the case for the defense was opened by Mr. Greenshields, who said the chief line of the defense would be to prove prisoner's insanity. Father Andre of Prince Albert testified that he believed Riel insane on religion and politics. Dr. Roy, medical superintendent of Beauport asylum, Quebec, testified to the same effect, basing his testimony on observations when Riel was in the asylum from 1876 to 1878. Dr. David Clark of the Toronto lunatic asylum shared the same belief. Dr. Wallace of Hamilton asylum believed the prisoner insane. Riel was very excited during the examination as to his sanity.

A CURE OF PNEUMONIA.
Dr H D Barnaby of Oswego N Y says that his daughter was taken with a violent chill which terminated with Pneumonia, and all the best physicians gave the case up and said she could live but a few hours at most. She was in this condition when a friend recommended DR WM HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS and advised her to try it. She accepted it as a last resort and was surprised to find that it produced a marked change for the better and by persevering a permanent cure was effected.

THE INDIANAPOLIS INVESTIGATION

Heavy Defalcation in a Buffalo Bank—Two Men and a Woman Hanged in the South—Events in the Sporting World

[Both wires to the east were down last night, and only an abridged report could be sent via San Francisco.]

MT MCGREGOR July 31—A considerable number of people came to the mountain to-day to view the remains of the dead general. The expression of the face remains very natural.

A magnificent floral memorial was received at the Grant cottage this evening from Ex-Governor Leland Stanford of California and Mrs. Stanford, representing the "Gates Ajar," composed of two gates six feet high by five feet wide, constructed of white and purple immortelles spanned by an arch inscribed with the name "U S Grant," and with a flight of steps ascending to the half-opened gates.

The programme of the services for Tuesday is as follows: Scripture reading, Ninetieth psalm; prayer by Rev Bishop Harris of the Methodist Episcopal church, New York; "My faith looks up to thee"; discourse by Rev J P Newman; hymn "Nearer, My God to Thee"; benediction; contralto solo "Beyond the Smiling and the Weeping."

ARRANGEMENTS AT WASHINGTON.

NEW YORK July 31—Arrangements for General Grant's funeral, so far as relate to General Hancock's division, are nearly completed. H A Seddins of Washington wrote suggesting that a detail of 100 men from each regiment that served under Grant be present in the procession. Sergeant-at-Arms C W P Canaday telegraphed that the vice president and a committee from the senate would attend the obsequies. Colonel G S Gillespie, U S A, General George B M Hawarts and Brevet Brigadier-General T F Rodenbaugh of Bath, Maine, were appointed additional aides. Colonel Roger Jones has been telegraphed to fire minute guns at Saratoga during the progress of the funeral train.

GENERAL GRANT'S SWORDS AND UNIFORMS.

WASHINGTON July 31—Referring to regrets that have been expressed in some quarters that General Grant is not to be buried in his uniform with one of his swords by his side, and to the supposition that none of his uniforms or swords are available for that purpose because they were all turned over to the government some months ago, with his other military relics, Adjutant General Drum said to-day that any or all of them are at the disposal of Mrs Grant while they remain in the war department awaiting the action of congress.

EASTERN NEWS ITEMS

THE INDIANAPOLIS INVESTIGATION.

INDIANAPOLIS July 31—The investigation of the acts of Postmaster Jones was continued by Civil Service Commissioner Thoman and Chief Examiner Lyman to-day. During the day statements were made by both the prosecution and the defense but the examination is conducted privately. Several of the witnesses examined to-day were men who either failed to pass examination, or who had been removed from positions in the office. The action of the local board of examiners is being investigated with great care and Messrs Thoman and Lyman have taken possession of all examination papers and records. Particular attention is being paid to the cases of Woods and Wilmington, discharged register clerks, whose places were filled by Bydell and Browning who had satisfactorily passed examination. It is understood that the independent committee will press the other charges of making unworthy appointments and insufficiency and incapacity of some of the new appointees, before the president after the commissioners have made their report, and particular effort will be made to prove that Captain Dodd, assistant postmaster, is not a proper person to hold his present position, also that he and Mr Ben Jones were paid large salaries at the expense of subordinates who either had their wages reduced or were discharged. The investigation was practically completed to-day and Thoman left to-night for Washington. Lyman remains to give attention to some unimportant details.

ANOTHER STRIKE AT CLEVELAND.

CLEVELAND, July 31—Three hundred men and boys employed in the Lake Erie Bolt Works went out on a strike this morning, on account of a 10 per cent reduction in wages. The reduction was made several days ago and the men finally decided they would not stand it, as they had accepted a 10 per cent. cut about a year ago. Only the bolt makers, nut makers and boys struck. The wages of the machinists are not affected and they wished to continue work but were forced out by the others. The works are now idle and the superintendent announces that the works will not be put in operation until the employes accept the proposed reduction.

GENERAL SHERIDAN'S MISSION.

CHICAGO July 31—General Sheridan arrived from the west this morning and will leave direct for Washington this afternoon. The general is in excellent health. Concerning the troubles in Indian territory he said he had expressed no opinion, and while he had settled views respecting the Indian question, they would be expressed only to the president in person as that was the main mission upon which he had been sent. Any expressions which had been credited to him concerning the situation were unauthorized and unfounded.

A TRIPLE HANGING.

Two Men and a Woman, All Colored, Executed for the Murder of a Widow.

PLAQUEMINE La., July 31—George Wilson, Charles Davis and Mathilda Jones, all colored, were executed here to-day for the murder and robbery of Mrs Harriet Cole in this town on the night of January 7 last. Wilson was captured in Memphis a few weeks later, and before the trial made a voluntary confession, giving the names of his accomplices. The principal witness against the prisoners was a little colored girl servant of Mrs Cole at the time of the murder. She heard the murderers conspire to rob her mistress, and gave them information about Mrs. Cole's money and jewelry, and saw them with the jewelry in their possession after the murder. The conspirators entered Mrs Cole's dwelling, strangled her to death and robbed the house of money, diamonds and other valuables. She was the widow of the late Judge James I Cole, and was highly esteemed.

Wilson was baptized yesterday. He seemed resigned to his fate and he was ready to go and acknowledged the justice of his sentence. Davis declared he was innocent but ready to die. The prisoners did not sleep at all. Mathilda Jones said this morning that she was ready to die and thought she would go to heaven. She appeared quite cheerful, and did not allude to the crime. On the scaffold she was extremely nervous, and after saying good bye to all and while shouting and singing gave way completely and fell from the scaffold just as the black cap was drawn over her face. This displaced the ropes somewhat, and it required two strokes by the executioner to cut them. The necks of Davis and Wilson were broken and the woman died from strangulation.

Fully 5000 people were gathered about the court house and grounds. Davis was a little nervous and Wilson seemed to take it coolly. When the woman fainted she fell against Davis and then off the gallows. Davis lost his balance and caught hold of the ropes to the right, which held the trap, and was in that position when the trap fell at 12:45, Wilson standing coolly all the time. After the trap fell the ropes of the woman and Davis twisted together. The woman got her hands loose in her struggling, and grasped at everything in reach. She was known as the wife of Davis. They both said they were innocent of the crime. Life was declared extinct fourteen minutes after the trap fell.

CRIMINAL CALENDAR.

DEFICIENCY IN A BUFFALO BANK.

BUFFALO July 31—Many rumors have been circulated for the past few days of a deficiency in the accounts of the late Henry Conover, assistant cashier of the Manufacturers and Traders' Bank of this city, who died suddenly Friday last. Officers of the bank this afternoon furnished the following for publication: Mr Conover had charge of a responsible department of the bank, in which department the errors appeared. His death deprived the bank of his assistance in examining the books or reconciling the errors. Officers of the bank have been obliged to make an examination of the books under very disadvantageous circumstances, but it develops the fact that abstractions of the bank's property have been made from time to time dating back several years and aggregating $41,000, which is probably lost. The examination justifies us in saying that the soundness of the bank is unaffected and its capital of $1,000,000 unimpaired and that there is considerable surplus in addition.

HANGED AT LAST.

COLUMBUS Ohio July 31—Valentine Wagner, a German of Morrow county, was executed at the Ohio penitentiary this morning for killing his brother-in-law Daniel Sheehan in December 1882. This was the first hanging to take place at the Ohio penitentiary under the new law requiring that all executions in the state shall take place at the prison. The trouble between Wagner and Sheehan was of long standing and of a family nature and on the date named Wagner went to Sheehan's house and told him he had come to kill him and immediately drew a revolver and shot him, and fired again when he tried to escape. The trials were long and tedious, the supreme court affirming the judgment of the lower court and the circuit court also affirming the judgment of common pleas and fixing the day of execution for July 31. The governor had been sought to interfere on all manner of grounds but refused to do so after making a complete study of the case.

DYNAMITE OUTRAGE.

DENVER July 31—The incoming passenger train [illegible] at 9:30 this evening exploded a dynamite cartridge about two and a half miles south of the city. The Boots of Boyhood.

Shoe and Leather Review.

Those dear little red-top boots! Do you remember them, little man you were? You can close your eyes and see them—thick, stiff and black and heavy-soled. And what visions of beauty in your eyes were those red tops and bright copper toes! The memory of them brings you back to that period in your life where infancy passed into boyhood, and where dreams came to you of being a big man. They marked the beginning of your independence, of your strength, of your recognition as one of earth's creatures. Far better they brought a release of ridicule, for they came with pants and short hair in place of dresses and curls. How oft have you gone sobbing to your mother, your heart full of grief and mortification, because a bigger boy had pulled your hair and called you a girl! The change came all at once. Mother made the pants and one evening she brought home the red top boots. Then she put the scissors into your soft curls, cut them off, kissed them and laid them away. She was sorry to see the baby become a boy, but how your soul swelled! How you longed for the morning that you might wear them! How joyfully you cried out to little Billy Brown across the road that you had pants and boots! And Billy probably answered sulkily, "I don't care," while all the time he was filled with envy.

How changed was your spirit after this! You were no longer shy; you no longer played with the little girls. You stuffed the pockets of your pants full of strings and nails and was imbued with a desire to fight and throw stones. You waded bravely in the puddles and proudly assured the other boys that the boots didn't leak a bit.

Dear little boots! We revere your memory. You are to the boy what the sweetheart is to the youth, what the bride is to the man. Who would not turn back the wheel of time and again embrace you?

Five Steamship Companies Decline to Carry Mails.

VILAS PUBLISHES A STATEMENT

He Declares that the Companies are Unreasonable in their Demands—Indian Troubles Threatened in Idaho—Coast Notes

WASHINGTON July 31—Five American steamship companies, the Pacific Mail, San Francisco to Australia; the Red D, New York to Venezuela; the Clyde, New York to Turk's Island; the New York Havana and Mexico and the New York and Cuba line—have declined to carry United States mails after to-day. Commenting upon this action, Postmaster General Vilas to-day said: "Central American steamship lines, probably under the lead of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, have entered into a combination apparently for the purpose of forcing the distribution amongst them of $400,000 appropriated by congress for mileage compensation for carrying mails. Some of them wrote to the postoffice department desiring to know what terms would be given. I proposed to each of the companies to go to the full limit the law would allow and award them both sea and inland postage. This is about three times what they had been receiving for the same service during the past twelve years. It is three times what is paid for carriage across the Atlantic, and probably in most cases all that should be paid for carrying mail. The companies were still acting in concert, and in consequence of their combination refused to accept these terms which were so liberal compared with those they had received that they felt [illegible] suppose that they could drive the government out of the position it had taken, by refusing to carry for the compensation offered. The companies seemed to think that if they refused to carry mails there would be no other course left to the government but to make contracts with them and distribute the $400,000 accordingly. A complete schedule for transportation of mails will be arranged and they will go with very little difference in point of time to their destination. The statement has been made in newspapers to the effect that the government is not as liberal as Great Britain in compensation of steamship lines. The fact is the rate which has been offered over these lines very much exceeds the rate paid by Great Britain. The rate we offer is about 63 per cent more than British lines receive from their government. It was a rate unjustifiably far more than ought to be paid but the government deemed it fair to go to the utmost length which the law and reason allowed in order to avoid any difficulty with American steamship companies until congress should meet. The department has made such arrangements that the public will suffer no inconvenience worthy of mention in respect to the carrying of mails and in some cases, notably the Cuban service, the mails will be expedited."

The superintendent of foreign mails said the American companies had refused an offer of $1.60 per pound for carrying mails. This is what is known as combined sea and inland postage and is equivalent to $3,200 per ton. They receive at present the international rate or 44 cents per pound.

POLITICAL EXPRESSION.

Milton Advertiser (Ind): Most truly the president was right in saying the work of reform must be [illegible] the democratic party.

The Richmond, Va., State (Dem) rejoices over the fact that more postmasters have been removed in Virginia than in any other state.

The mugwump Boston Herald's political phonograph grinds out a solid chunk of truth when he says that "the democratic party is in need of reform."

The Washington correspondent of the New York Times refers to the eight democratic congressmen in Virginia who are distributing patronage. Is this civil service reform?

New York Sun: Of course the democrats who don't get the offices can be just as lively as ever. This is where Colonel Grosvenor thinks they will have a great advantage.

New York World: As usual the New York Sun is cultivating the democratic party in the off season and tendering a vast amount of unsolicited advice to the party managers in this state.

New York Sun: Our idea of a good government is that it should undertake nothing that can be as well or better done by other agencies. The new ornithological bureau seems wholly unnecessary.

Chicago Tribune: The dose being fixed up in Iowa of equal parts of democracy, greenbackism, prohibition, license and free whisky might cure cholera but it will never elect a democratic governor.

The kind of a man the Richmond Dispatch wants the Virginia democrats to nominate for attorney general is one who isn't afraid to go into the United States supreme court and uphold repudiation.

Chicago Tribune: If Secretary Whitney loses his present job we commend him to her majesty's shipbuilders as the man who has accomplished more for them than any one man has ever done in a single month.

General Stockton, Secretary Kelsey and the editor of the Trenton True American deny that there is any truth in the statement that a reconciliation has been effected between the Democratic leaders of New Jersey.

John P St John wrote to Professor Calderwood of Ohio September 30 1881 saying: "The prohibitionists of Ohio are hurting the good cause of temperance by affiliating with the worst enemy temperance ever had—the democratic party."

In the opinion of Senator Beck of Kentucky "Senator John Sherman is a great man. I think Edmunds is a greater lawyer but I don't think he has the breadth of view and the grasp for the many problems of American policy that Sherman has."

Don Cameron on the third term movement in 1880—"If we could have had the promise of a single postoffice we could have nominated Grant. But we never had a word from him, and up to the very last none of us knew whether he would accept the nomination if it should be made."

St Louis Republican (Dem): Mr Roswell P Flower enters the race for the democratic nomination for governor of New York as a reformer of the school of Jefferson, Jackson and Tilden. Nothing having been heard from Mr Manning on the subject we are as yet uninformed how fast or far Mr Flower will run.

Wheeling Intelligencer: The nominee in Virginia is a talented young man of great dash who will force the fighting. If our friends the enemy will kindly abstain from loading the ballot-boxes with democratic ballots before the polls open John S Wise will have a good chance to be the second Governor Wise of Virginia.

New York Tribune: The fact that John Roach's bids for the Dolphin and the three cruisers were $815,000 below any other contractor's seems to dispose of the charge that he was bent upon plundering the government. His enemies however are equal to the emergency. Seizing the bull by the horns they affirm that this very discrepancy between his bids and those of his competitors proves that he had no intention of honestly fulfilling his contract.

Boston Herald: If the democrats who are rebelling against the reform policy of the administration really believe what they say as to the sentiment of their party on this question they will put their faith to a practical test. Let them, as the Washington Post suggests, elect the affable Higgins doorkeeper of the house. And let them follow this up by nominating a Tammany spoilsman for governor of New York, a representative of the McLean democracy for governor of Ohio and a prominent "kicker" to head the state ticket in Massachusetts.

New York Tribune: Mr Roach's retirement from business is strictly in line with democratic policy. He closes his works and yards, discharges workmen receiving $30,000 a week, and leaves a large force of industrious skilled mechanics to shift for themselves. He is forced to do this partly because the times have been hard ever since the election in November but mainly because the administration has been dealing unfairly with him for partisan ends of its own. The assignment increases the feeling of depression caused originally by the success of a party committed to the policy of free ships and revenue tinkering.

Philadelphia Bulletin: The calamity may well be called a national one for the ship-yards of John Roach represented on a grand scale the idea of American industry and enterprise as it is represented nowhere else, and to close these great works means not only the ruin of John Roach and not only the scattering of his thousands of workmen with all the distress that such a catastrophe implies; it means a tremendous blow at the whole great system of protected American industry from which this branch of it can not recover until an American congress and an American administration rise to the level of the great issues which are now being formulated at Washington.

SOME OF GRANT'S SAYINGS

"Let us have peace."

"Go in!" (to Sheridan)

"Let no guilty man escape."

"Whichever party attacks now, will whip."

"It's too late to dodge after the balls have passed."

"I propose to fight it out on this line if it takes all summer."

"I can not afford to quarrel with a man whom I have to command."

"If home has a hell outside of it, it ought to be a heaven within."

Before Vicksburg: "We are whipping them. Tell it to [illegible] Hurry up the troops."

"I [illegible] willing [illegible] judge [illegible] have them misrepresented or falsified."

"There are few men really competent to command a thousand men. I doubt if I am one."

"The good opinion of my countrymen is dearer to me than the praise of all the world beside."

"There is not a sufficiency of Union sentiment in this portion of the state (Tennessee) to save Sodom."

"I have nothing to do with opinions and shall deal only with armed rebellion and its aiders and abettors."

"No terms other than an unconditional surrender can be accepted. I propose to move immediately upon your works."

"I was educated by the government. If my knowledge and experience can be of any service I ought to offer them."

"The stability of this government and the unity of this nation depend solely on the cordial support and the earnest loyalty of the people."

"No theory of my own will ever stand in the way of my executing in good faith any order I may receive from those in authority over me."

To his soldiers in response to a call for a speech: "Soldiers, thank you. You have done me a good day's work to-day, but you must do a better one to-morrow."

"You might as well attempt to put out the flames of a burning house with a squirt-gun. You ought to organize the whole military power of the north for a desperate struggle."

"I don't know anything about making speeches; that's not in my line; but we are forming a company in Galena, and mean to do what we can for putting down the rebellion."

Grant to Sherman before the fall of Vicksburg: "They seem to put a good deal of faith in the Lord and Joe Johnston, but you must whip Johnston at least fifteen miles from here."

Complimented on his strategy, Grant replied: "Oh I don't know much about that. I had as many men as I wanted, and I simply pounded away until I pounded them down."

At Shiloh an officer asked him "What preparations have you made for retreating, general?" To which the quiet impassive man responded: "I have not despaired of whipping them yet."

To McPherson: "Mac, you know your whisky won't help me to think; give me a dozen of the best cigars you can find, and if the ladies will excuse me for smoking, I think by the time I have finished them I shall have this job pretty nearly planned."

Buell reproached Grant at the battle of Shiloh for his poor provisions for retreat in case of defeat, saying that his steamboats would not have carried away 10,000 men. "Well," was the answer, "there wouldn't have been more than that left by the time I should have got ready to go."

A Tory Organ Attacks Lord Randolph Churchill.

NEWS AND GOSSIP FROM LONDON.

LONDON July 31—The Standard, which is an accepted tory organ, uses the following language in its attack on Lord Randolph Churchill, leader of the conservative party: "To speak plainly, Lord Randolph Churchill has been puffed in the press with admirable assiduity by a well organized clique, which is always ready to cry prodigious whenever he opens his mouth, but it is all in vain. The Liverpool incident shows the extent of the alarm which Churchill's blundering and blustering have inspired within the bosom of his party. It were a thousand times better that the conservatives should be again in opposition than that they should be exposed to the humiliation of such things as Churchill's attacks on Earl Spencer's government of Ireland. Unless the government disavows these attacks it will feel the bad effects in the future more seriously than it has yet contemplated. The truth is Lord Churchill has been much overrated. If his pranks be encouraged longer he will smash the government and the conservative party. We will follow Salisbury but we will not follow this overgrown school boy without knowledge sufficient to fathom his own ignorance of statesmanship. It is a common saying that Lord Churchill is equally radical with Joseph Chamberlain, and the popular estimate is not far wrong."

AGGRAVATED CASES OF CRIME.

LONDON, July 31—The papers continue to be full of aggravated cases of sexual vice and crime. To-day an eminent doctor was committed for trial for assaulting a female patient only 12 years old. At Leghorn, a priest has been arrested for carrying on a business of procuration under the guise of charity. He hired a building and had it opened with religious ceremonies as a home for young orphan girls and then scoured the streets for female children whom he brought to the orphanage, promising to provide them with permanent homes or situations. From time to time the prettiest girls were sent to places remote from London ostensibly to enter the service of some wealthy family as nurse maids and seamstresses. It is now charged that these girls were systematically sold to professional procurers in other cities.

FUNERAL OF SIR MOSES MONTEFIORE.

RAMSGATE July 31—The remains of Sir Moses Montefiore were buried here this afternoon. Business was suspended and shops closed. The weather was cloudy and the attendance was vast. The funeral rites were of an unostentatious character and the coffin was placed beside that containing the dust of the philanthropist's wife.

LONDON July 31—The house of commons last night rejected by a vote of 108 to 62 the postmaster general's amendment to the sixpenny telegraph bill. The bill of the late postmaster general, Mr Lefevre, making the cost of a twelve word telegram including address sixpence passed in the committee.

THE COLOMBIAN REBELLION SUPPRESSED.

NEW YORK July 31—Senor Becerra, minister to this country from the United States of Colombia, has received the following telegram from Panama:

Barranquilla has been taken by the forces of the national government, and that port will soon be open to commerce. Prestan, who since his escape from Aspinwall after its surrender to the national troops has been operating with the rebels at Barranquilla, was made prisoner and will be tried for the part he has taken in the rebellion.

Senor Becerra was seen to-night, and added the following information: "General Santa Domingo with the national troops, has at length succeeded in procuring a number of steamers with which to pursue the enemy up the rivers. General Camargo, who commanded the rebels, is already in custody and will be immediately tried and sentenced. There are no leaders left who are able to do anything with the remaining shattered forces of the rebels. The war, although a small one comparatively speaking, has been a costly one. Since receiving the above dispatch I have had several confirmatory dispatches from Carthagena and Colon."

CANADA.

THE RIEL TRIAL.

REGINA July 30—In the Riel trial to-day the case for the defense was opened by Mr Greenshields, who said the chief line of the defense would be to prove prisoner's insanity. Father Andre of Prince Albert testified that he believed Riel insane on religion and politics. Dr Roy, medical superintendent of Beauport asylum, Quebec, testified to the same effect, basing his testimony on observations when Riel was in the asylum from 1876 to 1878. Dr David Clark of the Toronto lunatic asylum, shared the same belief. Dr Wallace of Hamilton asylum believed the prisoner insane. Riel was very excited during the examination as to his sanity.

The Oregonian.

PORTLAND, SATURDAY, AUGUST 1, 1885.

"LET US HAVE PEACE."

General Grant, after the war, and down to the close of his life, often made remarks about the necessity of peace and reconciliation. These remarks, not deemed worthy of notice by the democratic press, when delivered, or noticed only to charge their author with malevolence and severity toward the south but thinly disguised by hypocrisy, are now being reprinted, with stupid editorial comment on the tone and spirit of utterances which are declared to be "full of rebuke" to the hatred and implacability of the republican party toward the southern people.

This is peculiarly idiotic. It presupposes entire forgetfulness of the fact that General Grant had a political record of twenty years, in full accord with the republican party; that the republican party twice made him president of the United States; that as president he approved and enforced all the measures in behalf of equal rights in the south to which the southern whites and northern democrats so passionately objected, and which they are still trying, and in many cases with success, to reverse or defeat. It was President Grant who uttered the first ringing protest against outrages upon political and personal rights at the south, which protest democratic organs called "flaunting the bloody shirt"—a phrase they continue to use to this day. It was President Grant who did all in his power to suppress and punish those outrages, for which he was denounced as a military despot, who was subverting the liberties of the people. Down to his very last political utterance, which was given in the presidential contest of 1884, he spoke of the suppression of the ballot in the south as the main issue in our politics;—that is, according to the democratic phrase, he swung the "bloody shirt" to the last, as he was the original author of the protest to which the organs of that party give this name.

Yet General Grant was for peace and reconciliation. He was the one man with best title to proclaim it. Peace and reconciliation, in his mind, were possible only through equality of rights. Shortly after the war, upon his first acceptance of the republican nomination for the presidency, he said, "Let us have peace." The same was his motto throughout his entire political career. After he was borne to Mt. McGregor, a dying man, his last reference to the relations of the north and south breathed the same spirit. "Let us have peace," is the injunction to the American people of the man who was greatest in war and who did most to win peace and make it secure.

And this is and has been the spirit and the wish of the republican party. The power of that party after the war, and during the presidency of Grant, was supreme. That power it did not abuse. It did not attempt, nor even propose, to punish even the ringleaders of the rebellion. All were dismissed to their homes and left without slightest molestation. Grant's magnanimity toward the soldiers of the southern army was approved by the republican party. There was an overwhelming republican majority in both branches of congress, and no attempt was made to institute a policy of vindictiveness or revenge. This is history. All that the republican party demanded was security for the results of the war;—first, acceptance of the abolition of slavery, and second, equal civil and political rights. The contest for the latter was long and bitter. In some of its phases it is present still. Because the republican party has insisted and still insists that there shall be equal rights in all parts of the country and no suppression of the ballot by force or fraud, it is said to "swing the bloody shirt," and the sayings of General Grant, who was first in insisting on enforcement of equal rights, and who on many occasions even employed the army to enforce them, or prevent violation of them, are quoted to "rebuke" it. Phenomenal partisan absurdity!

But misrepresentation goes further. It is said that the republican party charges that the south is "disloyal to the Union," that there is danger of another rebellion, and more to the same purpose. It is not true that the republican party charges or believes anything of the kind. Nobody is foolish enough to imagine for a moment that there is any possible danger of renewal of the effort that was made twenty-five years ago. That would be too irrational, even for the most perverse partisanship. But there is legitimate ground for protest against political abuses in the south. These abuses have prevailed there, in one form or another, during many years. They antedate the war. In many of the southern states free political action has not been permitted for thirty years. The republican party is kept out of these states quite as effectively at this day as it was in 1860. Political rights are violated or their exercise denied. By methods of violence or fraud the ex-slave states are held in a compact southern confederacy. It is against this system and its results that the republican party raises its protest and will continue to raise it, though the protest be what the organs of the party that has the political benefit of these outrages, call "waving the bloody shirt." This is the only phase of the so-called southern question that now remains to be considered; yet this one thing will still be pushed upon the attention of the country, as General Grant pushed it, till elections in Mississippi, Louisiana and South Carolina are as free and fair as in Massachusetts, Ohio and Oregon. It is right; therefore it cannot be sneered down; it will prevail, because justice and righteousness require it.

A country weekly that lauds the bogus journal, but gets its news out of THE OREGONIAN, says "the News is forging ahead." So it is. But it is not "forging" quite so much as it did. Formerly it forged dates, for nearly all its so-called telegraphic matter. Since the exposure it does a good deal less of it. Still, however, is "forging ahead," but with more caution, industry and at a slower pace.

at many of the newspapers of Oregon shington territory have been publish- highly complimentary notices of N and of the energy it continues incipal newspaper of the north- ption is appreciated, for ONIAN neither asks nor ex- its contemporaries, it is not insensible to the good will of those who treat it fairly, as it wishes to treat all fairly in return. On the other hand, to those papers that are actuated merely by malice towards it, and take delight in misrepresenting it, it has but to say that the only feeling it holds towards them is that of contempt, and that they may go along in their own way, without re- molestation from it.

A STUPID CRITICISM.

In an article on wheat carriage pu these columns three or four days ago, designed to correct a mistaken impression that the bulk of our grain crop would be shipped in steamers to San Francisco and not as usual by vessels loading at Portland or Astoria direct for Europe, the Astorian finds a text for a long tirade against this journal and this port. The article is passionate to a degree, quite out of keeping with the Astorian's usual good temper, and incoherent to a degree quite out of keeping with the Astorian's usual good sense. We cannot be quite positive of a meaning buried out of sight in verbiage, but from several close readings of the article we gather the impression that THE OREGONIAN'S offense was in speaking of the high port charges of "the Columbia river," and that the cause of ill speech against Portland is that she continues to be the shipping point of the country, a position to which Astoria has some pretensions.

The Astorian quotes from THE OREGONIAN as follows: "The Columbia can never become a tonnage market to which ships seeking engagements will come in large numbers, so long as owners are afraid to send ships here, and while port charges are higher than they are elsewhere." Now, this seems to us upon reading precisely what it seemed at the time of writing, merely a plain and harmless expression of opinion upon a general subject. But, asks the Astorian, "By what right does our Willamette contemporary assume the authority of such a statement concerning 'the Columbia river?' By what stretch of reason can it imply that because it costs ships exorbitant rates to go to Portland and load that therefore the Columbia river is to be held responsible? The admission that port charges are higher here than elsewhere—Astoria, for instance—is a saving clause and one that candor compelled." Now the Astorian is silly. THE OREGONIAN "assumed the authority of such a statement" upon the well known fact that the Columbia river is in ill-repute with ship owners and underwriters, and upon the other fact, equally well known, that the port charges of the Columbia river (we mean of course the Columbia river of commerce, of which Portland is the principal and Astoria the subordinate port) are higher than at San Francisco, for example. We were discussing not a question of local rivalry but a general subject of commerce.

Now, let us turn from the general subject to the local question, which the Astorian attempts to confound with it. The statement is made that "Portland wants no ships to enter the Columbia that cannot go to Portland." Rot! Portland wants to get as much money as possible for the wheat of the country, and it knows that every cent paid for tonnage is a cent taken out of the profits of the country. It wants tonnage as cheap as possible. Naturally enough, Portland likes to have vessels load at her docks, but she is not willing to pay a premium to engage them to do so. There is no sentiment about this business. Ships load here because they find it more profitable to load here. It is actually cheaper to carry a cargo of grain down the Willamette and Columbia rivers in the hold of a ship than in barges. If it were not so, vessels would load at Astoria. The Astorian, assuming that we have 300,000 tons of wheat to send away this season, says that this wheat could be shipped from Astoria for $120,000 less than it can be shipped from Portland. We have not examined the figures, but imagine the Astorian is not far wrong. But it is assumed that Portland and Astoria are common points, which they are not. It is naturally more expensive to ship grain from Portland than from Astoria because the situation is more remote.

The only question to be answered is this: Can vessels be loaded more profitably at Astoria or at Portland? Experience hitherto has strongly favored their coming up to Portland to load, rather than carrying the wheat to Astoria by boat or barge and loading it there. But if, at any time, it shall appear that money can be saved by stopping vessels at Astoria, boating the wheat to that place and loading it there, by all means let it be done. Buyers and shippers of Portland would make their profit in either case, else they would not buy and ship, of course; and they will load vessels either at Portland or Astoria, as they find it more profitable to them to load at one place or the other.

PORTLAND OR OMAHA?

When, some weeks back, THE OREGONIAN talked about the desirability of "local management" for the railway lines in this state, it had in mind just such occasions as that afforded by the discoveries in Union county. The new district, which promises to be a great and permanent "bonanza," lies not many miles distant from the railway line which connects Portland and Omaha, and near the point of junction of the two branches which, connecting at Huntington, form that through line. If the product of the mines goes to Omaha, and if their supplies come from Omaha, then the traffic will belong to the eastern branch—the Short Line. But if the product of the mines comes to Portland, and if their supplies are drawn from Portland, then the traffic will go to the western branch—the Oregon Navigation. It might naturally be expected that there would be eager competition between these roads for a business which promises great returns. The Short Line people are, indeed, promptly to the front. Already they are surveying a line, so that when it shall be positively known that the mines are rich they can get in quickly. What is the Oregon Navigation doing? Nothing! An explanation of this contrast is found in the difference between the managements of the two roads. One is local and active; the other is foreign and slow. One is managed wholly as a business, and the other largely as a basis for stock speculation. Another cause for the enterprising spirit of the Short Line management is the activity of the business men of Omaha. The railroad people know that they can rely upon Omaha to furnish a market for the products of the mines and, under even chances with other points, to gain and hold their general trade. Possibly if the Oregon Railway management were equally sure of co-operation it might stir itself a little.

A mining man who called at THE OREGONIAN office yesterday said: "No, sir, Portland will not get the trade of the new Union county mines. It will go to Omaha. The mines will be controlled by the Omaha interest. It does not do to wait for others to demonstrate the richness of mines. By the time the pudding is proved it will be eaten."

A FALLACIOUS EXCUSE.

The excuse constantly given for neglect to introduce manufacturing industries in the Pacific northwest is, "O, it won't pay; we haven't people enough to make a market." The excuse is untenable and fallacious. The basis of it is the erroneous assumption that we could have for our products no customers but our own people.

Massachusetts does not find a market for her manufactures, to any great extent, among her own people. The same is true of every one of our great manufacturing states. They seek markets beyond their own limits. It is no further from Oregon to Massachusetts than from Massachusetts to Oregon. And it is a much shorter distance from Oregon to many places to which Massachusetts ships goods, that we could produce out of our raw materials than it is from Massachusetts to the same places.

Nor is the difference in the cost of labor so great as is often pretended. Wages here, in most lines, are nearly or quite down to the eastern level. Moreover, there is a considerable supply of Chinese labor here, still cheaper, which might be used partly or wholly in many kinds of manufacture.

It is altogether a fallacy to assume that we shall have no market but our own home market. Even now the products of our industry, in the few lines that are partially developed, find markets to some extent in distant places. This is true of our woolen goods, stoves, hollow ware, flour, paper and canned goods. This list of products, multiplied out of our raw materials, might be enlarged almost indefinitely, if enterprise would only take hold.

Again, we have now a transportation system which would enable us to gather in our raw materials and send the finished products to all quarters. Within one thousand miles of us there is a wide and increasing market, which we ought to reach at least with as much facility as they can who are two or three times as far distant.

With the advantage of abundant resources and raw materials, an increasing labor supply at diminishing cost; with water power unequaled for the facility with which it may be utilized as well as for cheapness and efficiency; with a country full of fuel, timber, stone, iron and minerals of every description, and with unlimited advantages for the production of cattle, hides and wool, it is useless to say that manufactures will not pay here, if rightly managed. If, with all these advantages, they won't pay here, they won't anywhere.

More canned beef, by rail, from Kansas City. We send live steers by rail to Kansas City and Chicago and bring back canned beef; but you know it "wouldn't pay" to do the canning here.

There is lumber in eastern Oregon from Michigan. Oh! it won't pay to make lumber in Oregon!

MUGWUMPS—SPOILS AND "SPOILS SYSTEM."

PORTLAND, July 23.

To the Editor of The Oregonian:

Certain democratic editors seek to attribute to you and other republican editors a sinister purpose of sowing disaffection in democratic minds by condemning so-called mugwump civil service reform, and by advocating the policy of "turning the rascals out." Whether there is a latent sinister motive or not, it is nevertheless the true doctrine. Mr. Hamilton favored a life tenure for president and senate and long terms for subordinates as most favorable to liberty. Mr. Jefferson insisted on "rotation in office," and President Jackson said, "to the victor belongs the spoils." Right or wrong, these great leaders have left these principles as a legacy to their respective parties. It is undoubtedly true that the doctrine of Jefferson and Jackson is now endorsed by nine-tenths of the common sense of the country. Jackson's doctrine, however, is not to be confounded with the modern "spoils system," which is the making of a subordinate official's tenure of office depend upon his vigilant partisanship. Every honest and patriotic citizen (of the nine-tenths) believes in a definite tenure of office subject to the right of removal for cause, which, in a general way, is Mr. Cleveland's doctrine; because this makes official conduct independent and removes that fear in the official (because of his uncertain tenure) which renders him a tool of the administration. But the divergence of opinion between them and Mr. Cleveland's alleged policy is this, that the common sense of the country insists that the term shall not extend beyond the advent of a new administration. I have never seen more universal and hearty sentiment than that which says the new president is entitled to fill all the important offices with good men of his own party as soon as practicable after his inauguration. Mr. Cleveland will undoubtedly appoint democrats to all vacancies, wherein he endorses Jefferson and Jackson; and wherein he is not unlocking mugwumpery, which demands the British system, admired by Hamilton, of making no change during life except for substantial cause. The three doctrines on which politicians differ are: First, no change for party reasons, but only for cause, which is mugwumpery; second, no change except for substantial cause during a definite term of office, the term not to extend into a new administration, which is the sentiment of nine-tenths of the country; and third, a tenure at the will only of the appointing power, which is the palladium of the spoilsman and known as the "spoils system." The policy attributed to Mr. Cleveland is the hitherto unheard-of one of suffering the term to run over into his administration. I do not believe that is really his policy nor is it what the mugwumps demand. He has certainly not observed that rule unvaryingly. He is simply going slow to avoid mistakes. Nearly all republicans and democrats expect and desire him, as a matter of right and of popular expectation in his election, to put democrats into all the non-elective offices speedily, and the erroneous idea that he will not do so creates a large discontent. They feel that he was elected to make a thorough change of the government and that the popular will is not carried out by a failure to turn the republicans out. This sentiment is almost universal and is not confined to those who seek the places.

DEMOCRAT.

Chicago Inter-Ocean: One bright morning—to be exact, it was the 16th day of October, 1884—the Sun said editorially: "Grover Cleveland is a man tatooed with shame, base and degraded in his personal relations, living only for himself and his own selfish and egotistic ends, profoundly ignorant and of barren, commonplace mind." No paper the Sun now criticises said anything so mean as that.

The Oregonian.

PORTLAND, SATURDAY, AUGUST 1, 1885.

"LET US HAVE PEACE."

General Grant, after the war, and down to the close of his life, often made remarks about the necessity of peace and reconciliation. These remarks, not deemed worthy of notice by the democratic press, when delivered, or noticed only to charge their author with malevolence and severity toward the south but thinly disguised by hypocrisy, are now being reprinted, with stupid editorial comment on the tone and spirit of utterances which are declared to be "full of rebuke" to the hatred and implacability of the republican party toward the southern people.

This is peculiarly idiotic. It presupposes entire forgetfulness of the fact that General Grant had a political record of twenty years, in full accord with the republican party; that the republican party twice made him president of the United States; that as president he approved and enforced all the measures in behalf of equal rights in the south to which the southern whites and northern democrats so passionately objected, and which they are still trying, and in many cases with success, to reverse or defeat. It was President Grant who uttered the first ringing protest against outrages upon political and personal rights at the south, which protest democratic organs called "flaunting the bloody shirt"—a phrase they continue to use to this day. It was President Grant who did all in his power to suppress and punish those outrages, for which he was denounced as a military despot, who was subverting the liberties of the people. Down to his very last political utterance, which was given in the presidential contest of 1884, he spoke of the suppression of the ballot in the south as the main issue in our politics;—that is, according to the democratic phrase, he swung the "bloody shirt" to the last, as he was the original author of the protest to which the organs of that party give this name.

Yet General Grant was for peace and reconciliation. He was the one man with best title to proclaim it. Peace and reconciliation, in his mind, were possible only through equality of rights. Shortly after the war, upon his first acceptance of the republican nomination for the presidency, he said: "Let us have peace." The same was his motto throughout his entire political career. After he was borne to Mt. McGregor a dying man, his last reference to the relations of the north and south breathed the same spirit. "Let us have peace," is the injunction to the American people of the man who was greatest in war and who did most to win peace and make it secure.

And this is and has been the spirit and the wish of the republican party. The power of that party after the war, and during the presidency of Grant, was supreme. That power it did not abuse. It did not attempt, nor even propose, to punish even the ringleaders of the rebellion. All were dismissed to their homes and left without slightest molestation. Grant's magnanimity toward the soldiers of the southern army was approved by the republican party. There was an overwhelming republican majority in both branches of congress, and no attempt was made to institute a policy of vindictiveness or revenge. This is history. All that the republican party demanded was security for the results of the war—first, acceptance of the abolition of slavery, and second, equal civil and political rights. The contest for the latter was long and bitter. In some of its phases it is present still. Because the republican party has insisted and still insists that there shall be equal rights in all parts of the country and no suppression of the ballot by force or fraud, it is said to "swing the bloody shirt," and the sayings of General Grant, who was first in insisting on enforcement of equal rights and who on many occasions even employed the army to enforce them or prevent violation of them, are quoted to rebuke its phenomenal partisan absurdity.

But misrepresentation goes further. It is said that the republican party charges that the south is "disloyal to the Union," that there is danger of another rebellion, and more to the same purpose. It is not true that the republican party charges or believes anything of the kind. Nobody is foolish enough to imagine for a moment that there is any possible danger of renewal of the effort that was made twenty five years ago. That would be too irrational, even for the most perverse partisanship. But there is legitimate ground for protest against political abuses in the south. These abuses have prevailed there in one form or another during many years. They antedate the war. In many of the southern states free political action has not been permitted for thirty years. The republican party is kept out of these states quite as effectively at this day as it was in 1860. Political rights are violated or their exercise denied. By methods of violence or fraud the ex-slave states are held in a compact southern confederacy. It is against this system and its results that the republican party raises its protest [illegible] though the protest be what the organs of the party that has the political benefit of these outrages, call "waving the bloody shirt." This is the only phase of the so-called [illegible] question that now remains to be considered; yet this one thing will still be pushed upon the attention of the country, as General Grant [illegible], till elections in Mississippi, Louisiana and South Carolina are as free and fair as in Massachusetts, Ohio and Oregon. It is right; therefore it cannot be sneered down. It will prevail because justice and righteousness require it.

A country weekly that is [illegible] journal [illegible] gets its news out of THE OREGONIAN, says the News is forging ahead. So it is. But it is not forging quite so much as it did. Formerly it forged latest for nearly all its so-called telegraphic matter. Since the exposure it does a good deal less of it. Still however it is forging ahead, but with more [illegible] industry and at a slower pace.

[illegible] the newspapers of Oregon [illegible] tory have been publish[ing] [illegible] complimentary notices of THE OREGONIAN [illegible] the energy it continues to show as the [illegible] al newspaper of the northwest. This recognition is appreciated, for though THE OREGONIAN neither asks nor expects "puff[s]" [illegible] contemporaries, it is not insensible to the good will of those who treat it fairly, as it wishes to treat all fairly in return. On the other hand, to those papers that are actuated merely by malice towards it, and take delight in misrepresenting it, it has but to say that the only feeling it holds towards them is that of contempt, and that they may drivel along in their own way, without recognition or molestation from it.

A STUPID CRITICISM.

In an article on wheat carriage printed in these columns three or four days ago, designed to correct a mistaken impression that the bulk of our grain crop would be shipped in steamers to San Francisco and not as usual by vessels loading at Portland or Astoria direct for Europe, the Astorian finds a text for a long tirade against this journal and this port. The article is passionate to a degree, quite out of keeping with the Astorian's usual good temper, and incoherent to a degree quite out of keeping with the Astorian's usual good sense. We cannot be quite positive of a meaning buried out of sight in verbiage, but from several close readings of the article we gather the impression that THE OREGONIAN'S offense was in speaking of the high port charges of "the Columbia river," and that the cause of ill speech against Portland is that she continues to be the shipping point of the country, a position to which Astoria has some pretensions.

The Astorian quotes from THE OREGONIAN as follows: "The Columbia can never become a tonnage market to which ships seeking engagements will come in large numbers, so long as owners are afraid to send ships here, and while port charges are higher than they are elsewhere." Now, this seems to us upon reading precisely what it seemed at the time of writing, merely a plain and harmless expression of opinion upon a general subject. But, asks the Astorian, "By what right does our Willamette contemporary assume the authority of such a statement concerning 'the Columbia river?' By what stretch of reason can it imply that because it costs ships exorbitant rates to go to Portland and load that therefore the Columbia river is to be held responsible? The admission that port charges are higher here than elsewhere—Astoria, for instance—is a saving clause and one that candor compelled." Now the Astorian is silly. THE OREGONIAN "assumed the authority of such a statement" upon the well known fact that the Columbia river is in ill-repute with ship owners and underwriters, and upon the other fact, equally well known, that the port charges of the Columbia river (we mean of course the Columbia river of commerce, of which Portland is the principal and Astoria the subordinate port) are higher than at San Francisco, for example. We were discussing not a question of local rivalry but a general subject of commerce.

Now, let us turn from the general subject to the local question, which the Astorian attempts to confound with it. The statement is made that "Portland wants no ships to enter the Columbia that cannot go to Portland." Both Portland wants to get as much money as possible for the wheat of the country, and it knows that every cent paid for tonnage is a cent taken out of the profits of the country. It wants tonnage as cheap as possible. Naturally enough, Portland likes to have vessels load at her docks, but she is not willing to pay a premium to engage them to do so. There is no sentiment about this business. Ships load here because they find it more profitable to load here. It is actually cheaper to carry a cargo of grain down the Willamette and Columbia rivers in the hold of a ship than in barges. If it were not so, vessels would load at Astoria. The Astorian, assuming that we have 300,000 tons of wheat to send away this season, says that this wheat could be shipped from Astoria for $120,000 less than it can be shipped from Portland. We have not examined the figures, but imagine the Astorian is not far wrong. But it is assumed that Portland and Astoria are common points, which they are not. It is naturally more expensive to ship grain from Portland than from Astoria because the situation is more remote.

The only question to be answered is this: Can vessels be loaded more profitably at Astoria or at Portland? Experience hitherto has strongly favored their coming up to Portland to load, rather than carrying the wheat to Astoria by boat or barge and loading it there. But if, at any time, it shall appear that money can be saved by stopping vessels at Astoria, boating the wheat to that place and loading it there, by all means let it be done. Buyers and shippers of Portland would make their profit in either case, else they would not buy and ship, of course; and they will load vessels either at Portland or Astoria, as they find it more profitable to them to load at one place or the other.

PORTLAND OR OMAHA?

When, some weeks back, THE OREGONIAN talked about the desirability of local management for the railway lines in this state, it had in mind just such occasions as that afforded by the discoveries in Union county. The new district, which promises to be a great and permanent "bonanza," lies not many miles distant from the railway line which connects Portland and Omaha, and near the point of junction of the two branches which, connecting at Huntington, form that through line. If the product of the mines goes to Omaha, and if their supplies come from Omaha, then the traffic will belong to the eastern branch—the Short Line. But if the product of the mines comes to Portland, and if their supplies are drawn from Portland, then the traffic will go to the western branch—the Oregon Navigation. It might naturally be expected that there would be eager competition between these roads for a business which promises great returns. The Short Line people are, indeed, promptly to the front. Already they are surveying a line so that when it shall be positively known that the mines are rich they can get in quickly. What is the Oregon Navigation doing? Nothing. An explanation of this contrast is found in the difference between the managements of the two roads. One is local and active, the other is foreign and slow. One is managed wholly as a business and the other largely as a basis for stock speculation. Another cause for the enterprising spirit of the Short Line management is the activity of the business men of Omaha. The railroad people know that they can rely upon Omaha to furnish a market for the products of the mines and, under even chances with other points to gain and hold their general trade. Possibly if the Oregon Railway management were equally sure of co-operation it might stir itself a little.

A mining man who called at THE OREGONIAN office yesterday said: "No, sir, Portland will not get the trade of the new Union county mines. It will go to Omaha. The mines will be controlled by the Omaha interest. It does not do to wait for others to demonstrate the richness of mines. By the time the pudding is proved it will be eaten."

A FALLACIOUS EXCUSE.

The excuse constantly given for neglect to [illegible] manufacturing industries in the Pacific northwest is, "O, it won't pay; we haven't [illegible] enough to make a market." The excuse [illegible] and fallacious. The basis of it is the erroneous assumption that we could have for our [illegible] customers but our own people.

Massachusetts does not find a market for her manufactures to any great extent among her own people. The same is true of every one of our great manufacturing states. They seek markets beyond their own limits. It is no further from Oregon to Massachusetts than from Massachusetts to Oregon. And it is a much shorter distance from Oregon to many places to which Massachusetts ships goods that we could produce out of our raw materials than it is from Massachusetts to the same places.

Nor is the difference in the cost of labor so great as is often pretended. Wages here, in most lines, are nearly or quite down to the eastern level. Moreover, there is a considerable supply of Chinese labor here, still cheaper, which might be used partly or wholly in many kinds of manufacture.

It is altogether a fallacy to assume that we shall have no market but our own home market. Even now the products of our industry, in the few lines that are partially developed, find markets to some extent in distant places. This is true of our woolen goods, stoves, hollow ware, flour, paper and canned goods. This list of products, multiplied out of our raw materials, might be enlarged almost indefinitely if enterprise would only take hold.

Again, we have now a transportation system that would enable us to gather in our raw materials and send the finished products to all quarters. Within one thousand miles of us there is a wide and increasing market, which we ought to reach at least with as much facility as they can who are two or three times as far distant.

With the advantage of abundant resources and raw materials, an increasing labor supply at diminishing cost, with water power unequaled for the facility with which it may be utilized as well as for cheapness and efficiency, with a country full of fuel, timber, stone, iron and minerals of every description, and with unlimited advantages for the production of cattle, hides and wool, it is useless to say that manufactures will not pay here, if rightly managed. If, with all these advantages, they won't pay here, they won't anywhere.

More canned beef, by rail, from Kansas City. We send live steers by rail to Kansas City and Chicago and bring back canned beef, but you know it "wouldn't pay" to do the canning here.

There is lumber in eastern Oregon from Michigan. Oh! it won't pay to make lumber in Oregon!

MUGWUMPS—SPOILS AND "SPOILS SYSTEM."

PORTLAND, July 23.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Certain democratic editors seek to attribute to you and other republican editors a sinister purpose of sowing disaffection in democratic minds by condemning so-called mugwump civil service reform and by advocating the policy of "turning the rascals out." Whether there is a latent sinister motive or not it is nevertheless the true doctrine. Mr. Hamilton favored a life tenure for president and senate and long terms for subordinates as most favorable to liberty. Mr. Jefferson insisted on "rotation in office," and President Jackson said "to the victor belongs the spoils." Right or wrong, these great leaders have left these principles as a legacy to their respective parties. It is undoubtedly true that the doctrine of Jefferson and Jackson is now endorsed by nine-tenths of the common sense of the country. Jackson's doctrine, however, is not to be confounded with the modern "spoils system," which is the making of a subordinate official's tenure of office depend upon his vigilant partisanship. Every honest and patriotic citizen (of the nine-tenths) believes in a definite tenure of office subject to the right of removal for cause, which in a general way is Mr. Cleveland's doctrine, because this makes official conduct independent and removes that fear in the official (because of his uncertain tenure) which renders him a tool of the administration. But the divergence of opinion between them and Mr. Cleveland's alleged policy is this, that the common sense of the country insists that the term shall not extend beyond the advent of a new administration. I have never seen a more universal and hearty sentiment than that which says the new president is entitled to fill all the important offices with good men of his own party as soon as practicable after his inauguration. Mr. Cleveland will undoubtedly appoint democrats to all vacancies, wherein he endorses Jefferson and Jackson, and wherein he is not upholding mugwumpery, which demands the British system admired by Hamilton of making no change during life except for substantial cause. The three doctrines on which politicians differ are: First, no change for party reasons but only for cause, which is mugwumpery; second, no change except for substantial cause during a definite term of office, the term not to extend into a new administration, which is the sentiment of nine tenths of the country; and third, a tenure at the will only of the appointing power, which is the palladium of the spoilsman and known as the "spoils system." The policy attributed to Mr. Cleveland is the hitherto unheard-of one of suffering the term to run over into his administration. I do not believe that is really his policy nor is it what the mugwumps demand. He has certainly not observed the rule unvaryingly. He is simply going slow to avoid mistakes. Nearly all republicans and democrats expect and desire him as a matter of right and of popular expectation in his election to put democrats into all the non-clerical offices speedily, and the erroneous idea that he will not do so creates a large discontent. They feel that he was elected to make a thorough change of the government, and that the popular will is not carried out by a failure to turn the republicans out. This sentiment is almost universal and is not confined to those who [illegible] the places.

DEMOCRAT.

Chicago Inter Ocean: One bright morning—to be exact, it was the 10th day of October, 1884—the Sun said editorially: "Grover Cleveland is a man tattooed with shame, base and degraded in his personal relations, living only for himself and his own selfish and egotistic ends, profoundly ignorant and of barren commonplace mind." No paper the Sun now criticises said anything so mean as that.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

NEW LAW FIRM.—A new firm has recently been formed here for the purpose of transacting a general law and land business, consisting of James S Negley, Jr., George W. Hood, Chandler B. Watson and James A McGee, under the firm name of Negley, Hood, Watson & Co. Mr Negley is the son of General James S Negley, the present member of congress from Pittsburg, Pennsylvania He has been engaged for some years in the practice of law at that place. Mr Hood is also a lawyer by profession and has had considerable practice in the courts of Pennsylvania, and is at present a member of the senate of that state. Mr Watson is the present collector of customs for the southern district of Oregon, a lawyer by profession and well known throughout the state. Mr. McGee is a young man of large business experience and is at present identified with several important industries affecting the business interests of our state Senator Hood and Mr Negley left this morning for San Francisco by the overland route to look after the interests of some English capitalists in the state of California and intend making a careful examination of the resources of that and other states on the Pacific coast. It is understood that Senator Hood will look after the interests of the firm in the east and Messrs Negley Watson & McGee in the west During the sojourn of Senator Hood and Mr Negley in Portland they have expressed themselves in the highest terms of the city and the very generous and courteous treatment they have received at the hands of her citizens.

WANT THEIR MONEY BACK.—A meeting of parties interested in payments made upon lands of the Oregon Central Railroad Company was held at the St. Charles hotel, Westport, W T, a few days since Samuel L Lovel was elected chairman and Robert James secretary The chairman addressed the meeting, stating that its object was to take concerted action to recover the amounts paid to the company upon their lands, which were now forfeited, that the company was now in the hands of a receiver and the agents refuse to refund the money made as payments upon land, as agreed in the contracts A suit would be necessary in order to compel such payment. If the parties interested would unite the percentage of cost would be small, therefore he suggested that a committee be appointed to ascertain the amount of claims that would be willing to unite in pressing this suit and then the percentage of said claims that it would cost to conduct the suit to a termination A motion was carried that the chairman constitute a committee of one to take such action as necessary to carry out the suggestion. The number of claims presented was 122, aggregating the sum of $1780 The meeting was then adjourned, subject to the call of the chairman.

NARROW GAUGE TIME TABLE.—C. N Scott, receiver of the Oregonian Railway company, has issued a new freight tariff and time table, to take effect Aug. 1st, at 1 A M. ACCIDENTALLY KILLED.—An Oregon City correspondent of THE OREGONIAN sends the following particulars of an accidental death A fatal accident recently occurred in the Eagle Creek burn in Clackamas county, thirty miles from this place Julius C Grints aged about 35 a native of Denmark naturalized a year ago was carrying his gun behind him, and while he was jumping over a log the gun was discharged, the shot entering the base of the brain killing him instantly This occurred about the 18th of July. Deceased has relatives in Copenhagen, Denmark and was evidently well known to Messrs F Tuerkelson and S. P. Sorensen of Portland He was a ship carpenter and bridge builder Dr Parker, the coroner of Clackamas county, held an inquest the jury returning a verdict of accidental death The coroner took charge of the effects till Judge W L. White should appoint an administrator The remains were buried upon the spot

HARRY GATES BENEFIT.—A finer audience never graced the Casino than was gathered there last evening, and it needed but one glance over it to prove, even to a stranger, what a favorite the popular tenor is among the ladies Every seat was occupied, save those in the gallery from which one cannot get a view of the stage, and there were nearly people enough standing to have filled those Mr Gates was in good voice and pleased his audience throughout Among his support which was good were many of the old Casino favorites and the chorus was the best that could be had under the circumstances The four little pictures the work of Mr Gates which were offered as souvenirs of this occasion were given away by lot The lucky numbers were 220 111 142 and 123. The first one was not claimed, but the holders of the other three were respectively J J Riley Miss Spaulding and Mrs Ben Branch

DROWNED NEAR BROWNSVILLE.—Ed. ..., a lad aged 18 years and brother of Mrs. N. D. Coun of Albany was drowned last Sunday morning while bathing in the Calipooia river near Brownsville in company with several companions About midway in the stream where it is quite deep was a snag sticking up above the surface of the water After being in a few minutes young Comes said to his companions, I expect would be drowned if I were to try to swim around that snag and then struck out for the snag going around it and getting back all right but on a second trial just as he neared the opposite bank he suddenly struggled evidently completely exhausted and sank A companion tried to reach him but was not experienced enough to render any assistance Help was obtained and the water being still the body of the young man was soon found

FINE SCENERY.—It is becoming widely known that the people of this place and adjacent cities are singularly well situated respecting the ease with which they obtain a few hours rest from business and enjoy some of the most wonderful views that can be found With this thought in mind, the Ladies Aid Society of the Congregational church at Oregon City having a worthy object in view have planned an excursion on the elegant steamer Multnomah from Oregon City touching at Portland and East Portland with cover to Camas and Multnomah falls on Thursday next August Steamer will leave Oregon City at 7 30 A M. Tickets round trip may be had at Ailsky Lamb & Co's or of Henry Wind foot of Alder street where the boat will leave at o clock

GOOD TIME TO BUILD.—In spite of dull times and business depression and all that there is a great deal of building going on about town and especially in the outskirts of the city Many people of ordinary means who have saved up a few hundred dollars against a rainy day have come to the conclusion that they can make no better investment than to build for themselves little homes Contractors, from the scarcity of large jobs, are willing to take small ones, and building material was never cheaper than at the present time Lumber can be had at prices that barely pay the expenses of loggers and mill men, and a prominent burner said yesterday that he would ask for nothing better than to furnish all the brick he could turn out for $5 per thousand

MYSTERY SOLVED.—The spirit of deep dejection and gloom which has rested on many of our citizens since those dreadful looking facial conundrums were posted around town has disappeared since it has become known that they represent one of the characters in the Private Secretary Men and women were going out of their wits trying to imagine what affliction those horrid soul harrowing faces were the forerunner of He most hopeful looked upon them as less than some new kind of liver medicine The pictures make one who looks at them too tired to live, and it would seem as if the origin of them there must be a bowelless woe, the offspring of horror and misery, of whom some consuming grief has wasted away all but the abnormal head

SITKA'S FAREWELL TO GOV KINKEAD.—At a public meeting of citizens of Sitka Alaska, held July 14 resolutions of regret upon the retirement of J H Kinkead as governor of the territory were adopted The resolutions include expressions of satisfaction as to the public life and personal worth of the retiring governor, regret because of his retirement before he could fairly put the machinery of the government in motion, and sympathy on account of present bodily afflictions Mr Kinkead first reached Alaska in 1867, and has always been considered a pioneer citizen A copy of the resolutions were ordered to be handed the retiring governor and published in [illegible] They are signed by M P [illegible] chairman and Edward H Brown as secretary

THE WEST SHORE.—August number of the West Shore is the best of the year not only as to the descriptive articles but as to the illustrations, which give the reader a good idea of the flourishing town of Butte Montana. The opening illustration is a view of the Anaconda mine and smelters This is followed by another full page picture of the court house and some of the business houses which in turn is followed by an excellent double page view of the town together with a number of the larger smelters, mills and mines Among the numerous other illustrations is a splendid view of Main street with the mountains in the distance A half hour's study of this issue of the West Shore will prove instructive and interesting.

QUICK TIME FROM ASHLAND.—Colonel Joe Johnson railroad commissioner, arrived here overland from California last night The object of his journey was to examine and accept about forty miles of the last constructed portion of the O & C railroad The train on which Colonel Johnson arrived here was not brought by the engine, William Reid on the first time ever made on her and leaving [illegible] at 7 A M they stopped at [illegible] burg, one hour [illegible] at 7 M, making the run of [illegible] miles in eleven hours including [illegible] stoppages [illegible] things are fixed so that trains run regularly on that line as speedily [illegible] the Foverth O & C

ARRESTED FOR FORGERY.

Some time since Messrs. French & Co bankers, of The Dalles, received an inquiry concerning a draft purporting to be drawn by them on their Chicago correspondent, which had been cashed for Dr H. L. Moody by the Oneida County Bank, at Utica, New York, and which was supposed to be a forgery They in reply stated that they had issued no such draft and that it was a forgery. Nothing more was heard of the matter till yesterday it was learned from Utica and Albany New York papers received here that Moody had been arrested He will be remembered by many here as a tall, sallow-complexioned, lank appearing man with heavy dark moustache and dull hazel eyes about 40 years of age, who had an office on Morrison street over Knight's drugstore, and who was often seen on the street wearing a tall hat smoking a cigar and carrying a gold headed cane. He left here for the east last February, and on the 5th of June arrived at Utica, N. Y., where he had resided for some months four years before and where he had married the widow of Edward Ives a dry goods merchant, now residing here At that time he seemed to have plenty of money, which he spent in an open manner and was generally supposed to be wealthy Moody called upon Thomas Owens a boot and shoe dealer of Utica, who knew him slightly from having sold him goods during his previous residence in that city To Mr Owens he represented that he was the owner of considerable property and was in good circumstances, that he was the inventor of a valuable patent medicine and was on his way to New York to introduce it to the trade Later he called again on Mr Owens, and stated that as he wished to get a draft cashed, he desired to be recommended to the bank where the firm did business. Mr Owens, thinking him perfectly good recommended him to the Oneida county bank, where the draft purporting to be drawn on Chicago by French & Co. of The Dalles for $200 was cashed and Moody disappeared The draft was pronounced a forgery and Mr Owens at once took steps to secure the arrest of the swindler In the course of the investigations set on foot it was found that the Wilber National bank at Oneonta had been swindled by Moody some time before the Utica affair, in like manner the sum being $600 At this bank Moody had given as reference Franklin Converse a large shoe dealer of Albany, and former friend of Mrs. Moody's first husband Mr Converse was notified of the forgeries and arranged that if Moody should turn up in Albany, the police should be notified. On July 21 Moody called at the store of Converse and attempted to borrow $10 on a worthless check. He was at once turned over to the police and taken to Utica. He had on him when searched a draft filled out for $500, a lot of blank drafts, and other papers, which it is said, prove very damaging to him and develop other schemes worked by him in the past and for which he is wanted in Dayton, Ohio, and other western cities

Moody was arraigned in the city court at Utica and his examination was postponed until July 29, being "sent under $1000 bail

Mrs Moody was called upon yesterday by an OREGONIAN reporter at her residence in this city corner of Alder and Sixth streets She is quite an elderly lady, and was much distressed when informed of her husband's arrest of which she professed herself ignorant.

"That he should go back right among my own people to do this," she moaned; "that is awful. I can never go back," she continued. "Oh why did he go right where I was known to disgrace me?" When asked if she had any idea what caused him to commit the crime, she said "It is all on account of that sea-sick medicine. He had no head for anything else," and she handed the reporter a bottle labeled, "Dr Moody's Rex Marinus—Neptune's Passport," a medicine as the label set forth, warranted to prevent seasickness and which is probably the valuable patent medicine mentioned above.

"That was his hobby," she continued, "everything has gone into it. He left here for the east to introduce it, and has got out of funds, and then resorted to forgery "

She stated that she had some money when she married Moody, and that they went from Utica to San Diego, California, where the money was invested at the time of the boom, and never amounted to anything Then they came here hoping to prosper but had not been successful. She had kept a lodging house in Ladd's block corner of First and Columbia streets, and then moved to her present location. She had intended selling out here and joining her husband at the east and showed the reporter letters from her friends at Utica, expressing pleasure at the prospect of her return But her prospects were all blighted by this unfortunate exposure, and she did not know what to do

Dr Moody hailed from Michigan, and she married him after a short acquaintance. He had always been a kind husband to her she said, and she never thought of so much trouble coming upon her

LOCATION FOR SALMON HATCHERY

WARM SPRINGS, Crook Co., July 2

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Having read in the WEEKLY OREGONIAN of the 17th inst. your remarks as to the plan of renewing operations at the Clackamas river salmon hatchery to the effect that it did not seem to be at the right point to be of any benefit to the upper Columbia. I avail myself of the medium of your columns to call the attention of those who are interested in the matter of propagating salmon, to what seems to me one of the best streams east of the Cascade mountains, viz. the Des Chutes river, especially in the vicinity of the Warm springs agency This river runs within two miles of the agency and for some distance above and below where the agency river empties into it there are numerous coarse gravel or cobblestone bars where the salmon deposit their spawn, so the Indians say and as salmon can often be seen on these bars during August and September I have no doubt the Indians are correct The Des Chutes is I believe the largest stream that enters the Columbia below the mouth of the Snake river, and east of the Cascades The temperature of the water is quite uniform the year round always cool enough to be good drinking water during the hottest days of summer, and never cold enough in winter to freeze. During a period of eight years I have never seen a particle of ice floating down the stream or forming, save on its banks and then only after there had been a rise in the river and the freezing weather which formed it on its river fell During these eight years I have known the river to but once rise as high as seven feet above low water Some winters it does not rise over two feet and for a majority of the eight winters it did not rise over three feet

All these points seem to me to make it a very desirable stream for the propagation of salmon As this river enters the Columbia above all the principal salmon fisheries it would be an equal benefit to all I shall be glad to answer any letters that may be sent to me or what would be better is one or more persons interested in this matter would do well to come and see for themselves

INDIAN STUDENTS.

The Graduating Exercises of 1885 at the U. S. Indian Training School.

A Brief Review of the Work Accomplished and its Future Aims and Purposes—Address of Superintendent Coffin.

Tuesday last was a "red letter day" at the United States Indian Training School, located about four miles north of Salem, the occasion being the graduation from the institution of the first class in the history of the organization. The school was temporarily established at Forest Grove about five years ago the pupils being selected from the cream of the various Indian reservations in Oregon, Washington Idaho and Alaska territories It labored under many difficulties at the point first selected for its location and its friends commenced looking about for some point in the state where advantages were sufficient to warrant its permanent location. The citizens of Salem with a view of securing it, at once took the matter in hand, the board of trade of that city taking an active interest in the matter. Rev R. W Hill Squire Farrar and other well-known citizens took the matter in hand, and a committee appointed to solicit subscriptions succeeded in securing an amount sufficient to warrant and insure the purchase of 177 acres of land of the Moores estate eligibly located on the line of the Oregon and California railroad. The project of removal met with considerable opposition from various sources, but the advantages insured were of sufficient importance to overbalance all, and the necessary legislative sanction being secured the change was at last effected and the ground having been presented to the general government in fee simple, permission was readily granted to make the necessary transfer of pupils, goods and chattels. The advent of spring witnessed the removal of a sufficient number of pupils to commence the laborious task of clearing the land of a thick growth of underbrush and the erection of temporary buildings for the use of the school The labor was performed entirely by regular employes, and such assistance as was rendered by the Indian boys under the direction of the offices of the institution The buildings now used, while not elegant in either design or finish, are nevertheless comfortable, and answer the purpose for which they were intended, viz To provide shelter until the new buildings now contracted for shall have been erected These buildings are located about a quarter of a mile from the railroad track, while the site of the new buildings will be within a few hundred yards of the railroad, and prove attractive to travelers and tourists The grounds have been cleared off and work will probably be commenced on the new buildings within a couple of weeks, and be in readiness for occupancy by the 1st of January, 1886 Some $25,000 has been appropriated for this purpose, and the plans and specifications provide for a class of buildings not only commodious and convenient, but attractive as well. Messrs. Southwick & Erb of Salem were the lowest bidders, and the contract has been sent to the Indian department at Washington city for approval, and work will be commenced immediately upon their return here with the required endorsement. The following is a complete list of the employes of the institution and the salary each receives viz.

Dr W. V. Coffin, superintendent	$1500
Dr A. C Rogers, clerk and physician	1200
Minnie Unthank, principal teacher	1200
Mary F. Mills, assistant teacher	600

Two cadet sergeants	12
	24
	48
	72
One cadet sergeant	90

Only the employes named above after and including the laundry man receive their board at the expense of the general government, the remainder messing together and providing their own provisions and employing their own cook. The cadet sergeants are Indian pupils promoted from the ranks for proficiency in labor and studies creating a spirit of ambition among them that has proved advantageous Many of the minor employes are pupils as well They manufacture their own shoes and clothing In fact, one half of the five years time allotted by the government to perfect themselves in the various branches connected with the school is spent by them in manual labor, the girls being employed in the kitchen laundry, tailor shop and elsewhere while the boys are instructed either as artisans or farmers The blacksmith shop has proved this far very successful. While there we were shown a buckboard just completed which with the exception of the wheels, was built entirely by the pupils, and which for indications of durability will compare very favorably with work turned out of many of our leading wagon manufacturing establishments They issue a monthly newspaper edited and published by Peter Kalama, which while not the peer of THE OREGONIAN in any of its various departments is nevertheless interesting in its local characteristics There are some 225 pupils in attendance at the school, about two-thirds of whom are males Twenty nine different Indian tribes are represented in the membership roll They have an excellent brass band connected with the school numbering some twelve or fifteen pieces under the leadership and instruction of Prof. J M Comier of Salem They have visited the capital city on various occasions and treated the citizens to several really fine selections very creditably indeed.

The number in attendance at the graduating exercises although liberal was not what the merits of the occasion demanded. A number however, came down to the grounds on the regular north bound mail train, while many more went by private conveyance The exercises were held in a grove near the railroad track, comfortable seats being provided for the visitors while an elevated platform sheltered from the rays of the sun by a canopy of canvas elaborately decorated with bunting and evergreens afforded the graduating class and some of the leading visitors with prominent positions The graduating class numbered twenty two pupils their names and homes being as follows

While none expected to listen to a much higher order of essays bearing the imprint of scholarly attainment the surprise was none the less great and in a sense the general excellence of both, while passages in many and the entirety of a few would have been highly creditable to many a white pupil whose advantages were much greater than those afforded the hitherto untaught sons of the forest during their five years association with the palefaces While perhaps it might be deemed almost unjust to discriminate where all do so well, still we will not disparage the others by making special mention of Lillie Pitt's oration on "Up Grades" that of George Brown on "The World a Stage," Peter Sherwood on "All Men are Created Equal" and Miss F Kahama's essay "Paddle Your Own Canoe" There were many gems of thought and salient points scattered through each while the plaintive appeal of many in behalf of their own race, their ready excuses for the misdemeanors and crimes of their people their glowing pictures of what the future had in store for them if rightly treated by the white people, their personal ambition to aid in the advancement of knowledge in their respective tribes their recitals of trials and temptations awaiting them upon their return to their homes upon the reservations their regret at being compelled to leave the institution where they had first tasted of the sweets of education in many instances bordered upon the eloquent and won for them the applause prompted by approbation on the part of their listeners The vocal and instrumental selections were also well rendered. The voices of the pupils [illegible] (remarkably) sweet and [illegible] musical training. Taken all in all the programme was a most interesting one throughout and the pupils performed their several parts in a very creditable manner, and all in attendance were very agreeably disappointed in all they saw and heard At the conclusion of the programme, Superintendent Coffin stated that his part would be brief but that he desired to say a few words on behalf of the school and its present class of graduates.

"Graduates," he said, "because the allotted five years have been completed But one half the time spent in the school room and the other half in ... farm, ... reason of a burned building, closely crowded quarters and the removal of the main body of the school from Forest Grove to Salem, less than half the work laid out for the year has been accomplished But they did what they could, and what you have just listened to is, perhaps a fair exhibition of their ability to use the English language in giving expression to their thoughts, which in most cases has been acquired since their entrance at this school It is not, however any exhibition of their industrial acquirements to which the other half of their time has been devoted. The work of the boys in this direction speaks for itself in the trees and stumps and brush which have faded from this farm within the past three months, and in the little cluster of buildings which have risen a few rods to our rear, many of which are of raw material herein from the green timber on the ground. While the boys have done this the girls have done all the cooking, the washing the ironing and made all the clothing for a family of 200 persons.

The proficiency of their work you can see in the clothes room by themselves and the boys. The experiment begun five years ago has beyond the shadow of a doubt proven a grand success, and Indian children have clearly shown that they can learn that they can be industrious, that they can acquire and love the ways of civilization and abhor the darkness of savage ignorance. Now begins another experiment and one which, be it said to the shame of our government, should never be begun You see these children before you to-day, transformed by but a few short years of training from the uncultivated offspring of a savage race into bright, intelligent thinking boys and girls, conscious of the change that has been wrought within them, and alike conscious of the condition and needs of their race. They are ripe and ready for the education which every white father and mother would give to their children before setting them adrift in the world Every year which could be now added to their school life would tell more toward the enlightenment of their minds and the establishment of their characters than perhaps the whole five through which they have just passed.

But what is it now proposed to do with the children? To put them to a test from which every father and mother of our native race would shrink in horror! It is to return them to Indian reservations with all their unhallowed influence, and subject them to the same influences which have wrecked the majority of our own race who have encountered them Many times within the last two months I have been asked the question, "Will these children return to their parents?" Certainly they will, and I am safe in saying there is no boy or girl in this class too proud to own his Indian parents, however ignorant and degraded.

They love their fathers and mothers as your children love you, and the error which we as a nation now make, is not in returning them to their people but in removing them from every protecting and helping influence, and subjecting them to surroundings wholly degrading and morally destructive in their nature Not even employment is secured to them, and enforced idleness must be in itself wholly destructive to any ambition for that which is purer and better

Could the efforts which they are ready and anxious to put forth to-day, but be utilized under a careful and intelligent leadership, surrounded by the hallowed influences of Christian civilization, I is no question in my mind that with them and their class lies the salvation of their race and the solution of the vexed Indian problem.

I appeal to you as American citizens, as members of a nation of justice, can you listen to the exercises of these children to day and longer deny them the right to exist? Can you listen to their words of patriotism and longer deny them the right to citizenship and the protection of the stars and stripes we love? Can you hear the expressions of anxiety for the redemption of their race and not feel a touch of the responsibility we assume in saying they are better dead? Exterminate them and the fathers and mothers whom they love from the face of our land, and who of us will be willing to meet them before the bar of eternal justice?

Now, in conclusion, I have a few words for the children, in behalf of myself and the others who have labored among them and learned to love them, for the brave and noble efforts they have made in their own behalf. Our work for you is almost ended, and we are about to send you forth to a conflict whose severity you will not realize until it is upon you.

We can no longer shield you from its force, nor support you weakening forces. The enemy you have to fight is a foe that will test your truest steel, and there will be no flaw in your armor, no defect in your defenses, no want of vigilance in your guards or waning of your courage but he will reap an advantage and press the conflict with greater severity upon you. The preparation has been short, the battle, if you win it, will be long You are expected to return to your people to be the bearers to them of the truths which shall fit them to live and be useful members of a civilized nation Upon your success, in a measure at least, depends your existence Your people who parted from you years ago, with in many cases a sense of the object for which you came here, now await your coming with joyful hearts and the greatest hopes for your future and theirs We who have been your teachers send you forth, feeling that we love you and trust you, and yet with the deepest solicitude lest your feet should slip on the path of life. It is hard to send you forth and be only able to say "farewell" But "Thou shalt not be tempted beyond that thou art able to bear," is said to you as to us, If God has given you a greater battle to fight he has opened the way for a greater victory for you. You no longer worship a "Great Spirit" whom you do not know, but you have an intelligent knowledge of the creator of the world, and it is the hope of our hearts that the spirit who created you, the God whose image you bear the Savior whose blood was shed for you, may be your comforter in grief your support in weakness, your guard and guide through life and your savior in death as well as ours

Our work for you is ended but your faces and your words will live with us always Your success will be our joy and the hope is in our hearts that heaven will bring you back to us laden with the reward of life's work well done

At the conclusion of Mr. Coffin's able address Governor Moody being called for, made a few remarks of a congratulatory character followed by Rev R. W. Hill, after which the band rendered "Home, Sweet Home," while the audience dispersed Your correspondent, through the kindness of Dr Rogers, was then shown through the various buildings and about the grounds, where a couple of hours were very profitably spent in viewing what has and is being done for the benefit of the Indian children of this coast. Supper followed, and then the evening exercises when the following programme was carried out many remaining, to see it completed

NEED OF MANUFACTURES

PORTLAND [illegible]

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

Senator Dolph in his speech yesterday before the board of trade said What we need in this country and what we must have before our prosperity can be placed upon a solid basis, is manufactures" Senator Sherman of Ohio, in addressing the board of trade some two months ago made substantially the same remark and I believe it is a conceded fact admitted by all that the want of home manufactures is the great drawback to general prosperity in Oregon, and especially Portland. Now if such is the case and I do not question it, why don't our board of trade take the necessary steps to bring this about I can mention ten or more members of the board who could if they would form an organization put in operation a manufactory (say woolen goods or iron machinery) that would be a success without a question. This would be a stepping stone to other manufactures and it would be but a short time until the cry of hard times would be heard no more in all our land

Lobe's New Place

To-day our enterprising townsman, Mr A. Lobe invites all his friends and acquaintances to drop around and take a look at the new family liquor store he has just fitted up on Second street, next to Dr Child's drug store. For neatness style and convenience it cannot be excelled, and as for the assortment it is one of the most complete. One of the specialties of this store will be the wine department. A most pleasant cellar man has been engaged, and the many residents of Portland who are fond of using claret Burgundy Riesling or hock at their table can be accommodated by leaving word or telephoning to Mr A. Lobe who will run a neat delivery wagon to call on his many acquaintances and solicit orders personally. The celebrated White Rock Bethesda, Apollinaris and Wilhelm mineral waters will be a feature of the store while for beers, Schlitz's Milwaukee and local brands can be obtained on call. A fine line of French imported goods will be at hand presently. Mr Lobe hopes to see you at his new place, No. 1 (Second street), also entrance through Bristol's grocery store Morrison street.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

NEW LAW FIRM.—A new firm has recently been formed here for the purpose of transacting a general law and land business, consisting of James S. Negley, Jr., George W. Hood, Chandler B Watson and James A. McGee, under the firm name of Negley, Hood, Watson & Co. Mr. Negley is the son of General James S. Negley, the present member of congress from Pittsburg, Pennsylvania. He has been engaged for some years in the practice of law at that place. Mr. Hood is also a lawyer by profession, and has had considerable practice in the courts of Pennsylvania, and is at present a member of the senate of that state. Mr. Watson is the present collector of customs for the southern district of Oregon, a lawyer by profession and well known throughout the state. Mr McGee is a young man of large business experience, and is at present identified with several important industries affecting the business interests of our state. Senator Hood and Mr Negley left this morning for San Francisco by the overland route, to look after the interests of some English capitalists in the state of California, and intend making a careful examination of the resources of that and other states on the Pacific coast. It is understood that Senator Hood will look after the interests of the firm in the east and Messrs Negley, Watson & McGee in the west. During the sojourn of Senator Hood and Mr Negley in Portland they have expressed themselves in the highest terms of the city and the very generous and courteous treatment they have received at the hands of her citizens.

WANT THEIR MONEY BACK.—A meeting of parties interested in payments made upon lands of the Oregon Central Railroad Company was held at the St Charles hotel, Westport, W. T., a few days since. Samuel L. Lovel was elected chairman and Robert James secretary. The chairman addressed the meeting, stating that its object was to take concerted action to recover the amounts paid to the company upon their lands which were now forfeited, that the company was now in the hands of a receiver and the agents refuse to refund the money made as payments upon land, as agreed in the contracts. A suit would be necessary in order to compel such payment. If the parties interested would unite the percentage of cost would be small, therefore he suggested that a committee be appointed to ascertain the amount of claims that would be willing to unite in pressing this suit and then the percentage of said claims that it would cost to conduct the suit to a termination. A motion was carried that the chairman constitute a committee of one to take such action as necessary to carry out the suggestion. The number of claims presented was 12, aggregating the sum of $1780. The meeting was then adjourned subject to the call of the chairman.

NARROW GAUGE TIME TABLE.—C N. Scott, receiver of the Oregonian Railway company, has issued a new freight tariff and time table, to take effect Aug 1st, at 1 A M. The tariff includes a classification of freights, and gives the rate on the same to Portland. On the West Side, the road runs from Fullquartz to Airlie, 53 miles, connecting with the Oregon & California (west side) at Whiteside 54 miles from Portland. On the East Side the road runs from Ray's landing on the Willamette through Woodburn to West Stayton, 32.6 miles, and from South Santiam river to Coburg, 36.1 miles, the road between West Stayton and South Santiam not being operated. Under the new schedule trains leave Woodburn at 2.15 P. M., arrive at Silverton at 3.03 P. M. and at West Stayton at 5 P M. Leave South Santiam at 5.45 A. M. and arrive at Coburg 10.45 A. M. This train No 7, mixed. Train No 8, mixed, leaves Coburg at 11.45 A M, West Stayton 6 50 A M, Silverton 6 30 A M., and arrives at Woodburn 30 A M. On the West Side train No 1 mixed leaves White's 2.30 P M. and arrives at Airlie 7 30 P M. Train No 2 mixed, leaves Airlie 6.05 A. M. and arrives at Whiteside's 11 05 A. M.

ACCIDENTALLY KILLED.—An Oregon City correspondent of THE OREGONIAN sends the following particulars of an accidental death. A fatal accident recently occurred in the Eagle Creek burn in Clackamas county thirty miles from this place. Julius C Crints, aged about 35 a native of Denmark, naturalized a year ago, was carrying his gun behind him and while he was jumping over a log the gun was discharged, the shot entering the base of the brain killing him instantly. This occurred about the 18th of July. Deceased has relatives in Copenhagen Denmark and was evidently well known to Messrs F Thielsen and S P Sorensen of Portland. He was a ship carpenter and bridge builder. Dr Parker, the coroner of Clackamas county, held an inquest, the jury returning a verdict of accidental death. The coroner took charge of the effects till Judge W L. White should appoint an administrator. The remains were buried upon the spot.

HARRY GATES' BENEFIT.—A finer audience never graced the Casino than was gathered there last evening, and it needed but one glance over it to prove, even to a stranger, what a favorite the popular tenor is among the ladies. Every seat was occupied, save those in the gallery from which one cannot get a view of the stage, and there were half enough people standing to have filled those. Mr Gates was in good voice and pleased his audience throughout. Among his support which was good, were many of the old Casino favorites and the chorus was the best that could be had under the circumstances. The four little pictures, the work of Mr Gates which were offered as souvenirs of this occasion, were given away by lot. The lucky numbers were 220, 111, 142 and 123. The first one was not claimed, but the holders of the other three were respectively, J J Riley, Miss Spaulding and Mrs. Ben Branch.

DROWNED NEAR BROWNSVILLE.—Ed. Comes aged 18 years, and a brother of Mrs. N D Coon of Albany, was drowned last Sunday morning while bathing in the Calapooia river near Brownsville in company with several companions. About midway in the stream where it was quite deep was a snag sticking up above the surface of the water. After being in a few minutes young Comes said to his companions, "I expect I would be drowned if I were to try to swim around that snag," and then struck out for the snag going around it and getting back all right but on a second trial just as he neared the opposite bank he suddenly struggled evidently completely exhausted and sank. A companion tried to reach him but was not experienced enough to render any assistance. Help was obtained and the water being still the body of the young man was soon found.

FINE SCENERY.—It is becoming widely known that the people of this place and adjacent cities are singularly well situated respecting the ease with which they obtain a few hours rest from business and enjoy some of the most wonderful views that can be found. With this thought in mind the Ladies Aid Society of the Congregational church at Oregon City having a worthy object in view, have planned an excursion on the elegant steamer Multnomah from Oregon City touching at Portland and East Portland to Vancouver La Camas and Multnomah falls on Thursday next August 6. Steamer will leave Oregon City at 7 30 A M. Tickets, round trip $1 may be had at Alisky Baum & Co's, or of Henry Winch foot of Alder street where the boat will leave at 9 o clock.

GOOD TIME TO BUILD.—In spite of dull times and business depression and all that there is a great deal of building going on about town and especially in the outskirts of the city. Many people of ordinary means who have saved up a few hundred dollars against a rainy day have come to the conclusion that they can make no better investment than to build for themselves little homes. Contractors from the scarcity of large jobs are willing to take small ones and building material was never cheaper than at the present time. Lumber can be had at prices that hardly pay the expenses of loggers and mill men, and a prominent burner said yesterday that he would ask for nothing better than to furnish all the brick he could turn out for $5 per thousand.

MYSTERY SOLVED.—The spirit of deep dejection and gloom which has rested on many of our citizens since those dreadful looking facial column dreams were passed around town has disappeared since it has become known that they represent one of the characters in the Private Secretary. Men and women were going out of their wits trying to imagine what infliction these horrid sorrowing faces were the forerunner of. The most hopeful looked for nothing less than some new kind of liver medicine. The pictures make one who looks at them too tired to live, and it was only the fact that he would be relieved by... [illegible] ...el has wasted away all but the humor in it and.

SITKA'S FAREWELL TO GOV KINKEAD.—At a public meeting of citizens of Sitka, Alaska, held July 14 resolutions of regret upon the retirement of J. H. Kinkead as governor of the territory were adopted. The resolutions include expressions of satisfaction as to the public life and personal worth of the retiring governor, regret because of his retirement before he could fairly put the machinery of the government in motion and sympathy on account of present bodily afflictions. Mr Kinkead first reached Alaska in 1867, and has always been considered a pioneer citizen. A copy of the resolutions were ordered to be handed the retiring governor and published in coast papers. They are signed by M. P. Berry as chairman and Edward H Brown as secretary.

THE WEST SHORE.—August's number of the West Shore is the best of the year, not only as to the descriptive articles but also as to the illustrations which give the reader a good idea of the flourishing town of Butte Montana. The opening illustration is a view of the Anaconda mine and smelters. This is followed by another full page picture of the court house and some of the business houses which in turn is followed by an excellent double page view of the town, together with a number of the larger smelters mills and mines. Among the numerous other illustrations is a splendid view of Main street with the mountains in the distance. A half hour's study of this issue of the West Shore will prove instructive and interesting.

HIS GLORY IN HER HAIR.—D. Dodd, owner of "Oregon Beauty," the mare with the long mane and tail, exhibited on Third street some time since, writes to friends in this state that he has had the mare on exhibition in San Francisco for three weeks and that he was taking in from $20 to $175 per day. He says he was offered $7500 for her by a lady but that he would not take less than $10 000. It has been often remarked than when a man refuses an offer for anything of more than it is worth he is liable to lose it, and if there is anything in this saying we may look for some disaster to the long haired animal ere long.

HAY AND HOGS AT A DISCOUNT.—An OREGONIAN reporter in his rounds yesterday ran across an honest farmer who was trying to dispose of some fine hogs which he had fattened on chopped feed and clover. There seemed to be no demand for pork on account of the hot weather. The farmer was a little discouraged and seemed to think that mixed farming was not a success. He said a year or two ago the cry was "Why don't you raise more pork and seed your grain fields to grass?" He had done so, "and now hogs and hay aren't worth a damn!"

ARRESTED FOR FORGERY.

Some time since Messrs French & Co. bankers, of The Dalles received an inquiry concerning a draft purporting to be drawn by them on their Chicago correspondent, which had been cashed for Dr H L Moody by the Oneida County Bank, at Utica, New York, and which was supposed to be a forgery. They in reply stated that they had issued no such draft and that it was a forgery. Nothing more was heard of the matter till yesterday it was learned from Utica and Albany New York papers received here that Moody had been arrested. He will be remembered by many here as a tall sallow-complexioned, lank appearing man with heavy dark moustache and dull hazel eyes about 40 years of age who had an office on Morrison street over Knight's drugstore and who was often seen on the street wearing a tall hat smoking a cigar and carrying a gold headed cane. He left here for the east last February, and on the 5th of June arrived at Utica, N Y, where he had resided for some months four years before, and where he had married the widow of Edward Ives a dry goods merchant, now residing here. At that time he seemed to have plenty of money which he spent in an open manner, and was generally supposed to be wealthy. Moody called upon Thomas Owens, a boot and shoe dealer of Utica, who knew him slightly from having sold him goods during his previous residence in that city. To Mr Owens he represented that he was the owner of considerable property and was in good circumstances, that he was the inventor of a valuable patent medicine and was on his way to New York to introduce it to the trade. Later he called again on Mr Owens and stated that as he wished to get a draft cashed, he desired to be recommended to the bank where the firm did business. Mr Owens thinking him perfectly good, recommended him to the Oneida county bank where the draft, purporting to be drawn on Chicago by French & Co of The Dalles for $700 was cashed and Moody disappeared. The draft was pronounced a forgery, and Mr Owens at once took steps to secure the arrest of the swindler. In the course of the investigations set on foot it was found that the Wilber National bank at Oneonta had been swindled by Moody some time before the Utica affair in a like manner, the sum being $600. At this bank Moody had given as reference Franklin Converse, a large shoe dealer of Albany, and former friend of Mrs Moody's first husband. Mr. Converse was notified of the forgeries and arranged that if Moody should turn up in Albany the police should be notified. On July 21 Moody called at the store of Converse and attempted to borrow $50 on a worthless check. He was at once turned over to the police and taken to Utica. He had on him when searched a draft filled out for $600, a lot of blank drafts and other papers which it is said prove very damaging to him and develop other schemes worked by him in the past and for which he is wanted in Dayton Ohio, and other western cities.

Moody was arraigned in the city court at Utica and his examination was postponed until July 29, he being placed under $1000 bail.

Mrs Moody was called upon yesterday by an OREGONIAN reporter at her residence in this city corner of Alder and Eighth streets. She is quite an elderly lady and was much distressed when informed of her husband's arrest, of which she professed herself ignorant.

"That he should go back right among my own people to do this," she moaned, "that's awful. I can never go back," she continued. "Oh! why did he go right where I was known to disgrace me?"

When asked if she had any idea what caused him to commit the crime, she said "It is all on account of that seasick medicine. He had no head for anything else," and she handed the reporter a bottle labeled, "Dr Moody's Rex Marinus—Neptune's Passport," a medicine as the label set forth, warranted to prevent seasickness, and which is probably the valuable patent medicine mentioned above.

"That was his hobby," she continued, "everything has gone into it. He left here for the east to introduce it and has got out of funds, and then resorted to forgery."

She stated that she had some money when she married Moody, and that they went from Utica to San Diego California, where the money was invested at the time of the boom, and never amounted to anything. Then they came here, hoping to prosper, but had not been successful. She had kept a lodging house in Ladd's block, corner of First and Columbia streets and then moved to the present location. She had intended selling out here and joining her husband at the east and showed the reporter letters from her friends in Utica expressing pleasure at the prospect of her return. But her prospects were all blighted by this unfortunate exposure, and she did not know what to do.

Dr Moody hailed from Michigan, and she married him after a short acquaintance. He has always been a kind husband to her, she said, and she never thought of so much trouble coming to her.

LOCATION FOR SALMON HATCHERY

WARM SPRINGS Crook Co., July 27

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Having read in the WEEKLY OREGONIAN of the 17th inst your remarks as to the plan of renewing operations at the Clackamas river salmon hatchery, to the effect that it did not seem to be at the right point to be of any benefit to the upper Columbia, I avail myself of the medium of your columns to call the attention of those who are interested in the matter of propagating salmon, to what seems to me one of the best streams east of the Cascade mountains viz the Des Chutes river, especially in the vicinity of the Warm Springs agency. This river runs within two miles of the agency and for some distance above and below where the agency river empties into it there are numerous coarse gravel bars where the salmon deposit their spawn, so the Indians say, and as salmon can ... be seen on these bars during August and September, I have no doubt the Indians are correct. The Des Chutes is, I believe the largest stream that enters the Columbia below the mouth of the Snake river, and east of the Cascades. The temperature of the water is quite uniform the year round always cool enough to be good drinking water during the hottest days of summer and never cold enough in winter to freeze. During a period of eight years I have never seen a particle of ice floating down the stream, or forming save on its banks and then only after there had been a rise in the river and then freezing weather which formed ice as the river fell. During these eight years I have known the river to be but once risen as high as seven feet above low water. Some winters it does not rise over two feet, and for a majority of the eight winters it did not rise over three feet.

All these points seem to me to make it a very desirable stream for the propagation of salmon. As the river enters the Columbia above all the principal salmon fisheries it would be an equal benefit to all. I shall be glad to answer any letters that may be sent to me or what would be better some one or more persons interested in this matter would do well to come and see for themselves.

INDIAN STUDENTS.

The Graduating Exercises of 1885 at the U. S. Indian Training School.

A Brief Review of the Work Accomplished and Its Future Aims and Purposes—Address of Superintendent Coffin.

Tuesday last was a "red letter day" at the United States Indian Training School located about four miles north of Salem the occasion being the graduation from the institution of the first class in the history of the organization. The school was temporarily established at Forest Grove about five years ago the pupils being selected from the cream of the various Indian reservations in Oregon, Washington Idaho and Alaska territories. It labored under many difficulties at the point first selected for its location and its friends commenced looking about for some point in the state where advantages were sufficient to warrant its permanent location. The citizens of Salem with a view of securing it at once took the matter in hand, the board of trade of that city taking an active interest in the matter. Rev R. W Hill, Squire Farrar and other well known citizens took the matter in hand and a committee appointed to solicit subscriptions succeeded in securing an amount sufficient to warrant and insure the purchase of 17 acres of land of the Moores estate eligibly located on the line of the Oregon and California railroad. The project of removal met with considerable opposition from various sources, but the advantages insured were of sufficient importance to overbalance all, and the necessary legislative sanction being secured the change was at last effected, and the ground having been presented to the general government in fee simple, permission was readily granted to make the necessary transfer of pupils goods and chattels. The advent of spring witnessed the removal of a sufficient number of pupils to commence the laborious task of clearing the land of a thick growth of underbrush and the erection of temporary buildings for the use of the school. The labor was performed entirely by regular employes and such assistance as was rendered by the Indian boys under the direction of the officers of the institution. The buildings now used, while not elegant in either design or finish, are nevertheless comfortable and answer the purpose for which they were intended, viz. To provide shelter until the new buildings now contracted for, shall have been erected. These buildings are located about a quarter of a mile from the railroad track, while the site of the new buildings will be within a few hundred yards of the railroad and prove attractive to travelers and tourists. The grounds have been cleared off and work will probably be commenced on the new buildings within a couple of weeks and be in readiness for occupancy by the 1st of January 1886. Some $25,000 has been appropriated for this purpose, and the plans and specifications provide for a class of buildings not only commodious and convenient, but attractive as well. Messrs. Southwick & Erb of Salem were the lowest bidders, and the contract has been sent to the Indian department at Washington city for approval and work will be commenced immediately upon their return here with the required endorsement. The following is a complete list of the employes of the institution and the salary each receives viz.:

Dr W V Coffin, superintendent	$1500
Dr A. C. Rogers, clerk and physician	1200
Minnie Uthank, principal teacher	1200
Mary F Mills, assistant teacher	600
Viola McConville assistant teacher	600

Annie Sheckles Baker, assistant matron	600
E H Woodward, farmer	900
W S Hudson, blacksmith and wagonmaker	900
Samuel A. Walker, shoe and harnessmaker	900

W H Utter, tailor	900

Walter Burwell, head baker	120
James Maxwell hospital steward	60
Two cadet sergeants	12
" "	24
" "	48
" "	72
One cadet sergeant	96

Only the employes named above after and including the laundry man receive their board at the expense of the general government, the remainder messing together and providing their own provisions and employing their own cook. The cadet sergeants are Indian pupils promoted from the ranks for proficiency in labor and studies creating a spirit of ambition among them that has proved advantageous. Many of the minor employes are pupils as well. They manufacture their own shoes and clothing. In fact one half of the five years time allotted by the government to perfect themselves in the various branches connected with the school is spent by them in manual labor the girls being employed in the kitchen, laundry, tailor shop and elsewhere, while the boys are instructed either as artisans or farmers. The blacksmith shop has proved thus far very successful. While there we were shown a buck board, just completed which with the exception of the wheels, was built entirely by the pupils and which in indications of durability will compare very favorably with work turned out of many of our leading wagon manufacturing establishments. They issue a monthly newspaper edited and published by Peter Kalama which while not the peer of THE OREGONIAN in any of its various departments is nevertheless interesting in its local characteristics. There are some 125 pupils in attendance at the school about two-thirds of whom are males. Twenty nine different Indian tribes are represented in the membership roll. They have an excellent brass band connected with the school numbering some twelve or fifteen pieces under the leadership and instruction of Prof J M Coomer of Salem. They have visited the capital city on various occasions and treated the citizens to several really fine selections very creditably indeed.

The number in attendance at the graduating exercises, although liberal was not what the merits of the occasion demanded. A number, however, came down to the grounds on the regular north bound mail train while many more went out by private conveyance. The exercises were held in a grove near the railroad track comfortable seats being provided for the visitors while an elevated platform sheltered from the rays of the sun by a canopy of canvas elaborately decorated with bunting and evergreens afforded the graduating class and some of the leading visitors with prominent positions. The graduating class numbered twenty five pupils, their names and tribes being as follows:

GIRLS

Lillie Pitt, Sallie Pitt, Pitt River, Lizzie Olney, Etta Holleguilla, Emma Parker, Wasco, ... Winger, Emma Kalama, Ella Lane, Puyallup, Rose Line, Nez Perce, Jeannie Fletcher Snohomish.

While none expected to listen to eloquent orations or essays bearing the imprint of scholarly eminence, the surprise was none the less genuine and universal at the general excellence of both, while praise was openly and heartily accorded... would have been difficult to name a pupil whose attainments were much greater than those of the hitherto untaught sons of the forest during their five years association with the palefaces. While perhaps it might be deemed almost invidious to discriminate where all done so well still we will not do injustice to others by making special mention of Lillie Pitt's oration on Up Grades, that of George Brown on The World's Stage, Peter Sherwood on All Men are Created Equal and Miss ... Kalama's essay "Paddle Your Own Canoe." There were many gems of thought and salient points scattered through each while the plaintive appeal of many in behalf of their own race, their ready expressions for the ... ... hearers and ... the ... glowing pictures of what the future had in store for them if rightly treated by the white people, their present aims and ambitions in the advancement of knowledge ... the tribes ... temptations awaiting them upon their return to their homes upon the reservation, their regret at being compelled to leave the institution where they had tasted of the sweets of education in many instances brought tears ... and won the ... approbation on the part of their listeners. The vocal and instrumental selections were also well rendered. The voices of the pupils were in some instances remarkably ... Taking it all through the programme was a most creditable one ... their several parts in a very creditable manner and all in attendance were very agreeably disappointed in ... they saw and heard. At the conclusion of the programme, Superintendent Coffin stated that his part would be brief, but that he desired to say a few words on behalf of the school and its present class of graduates.

"Graduates," he said, "because the allotted five years have been completed. But one half the time was spent in ... school room, the other half in shops and sewing rooms and on the farm. The last year, by reason of a burned building, closely crowded quarters and the removal of the main body of the school from Forest Grove to Salem, less than half the work laid out for the year has been accomplished. But they did what they could, and what you have just listened to is, perhaps, a fair exhibition of their ability to use the English language in giving expression to their thoughts, which in most cases has been acquired since their entrance at this school. It is not, however, any exhibition of their industrial acquirements to which the other half of their time has been devoted. The work of the boys in this direction speaks for itself in the trees and stumps and brush which have faded from this farm within the past three months, and in the little cluster of buildings which have arisen a few rods to our rear, many of which are of raw material hewn from the green timber on the ground. While the boys have done this the girls have done the cooking, the washing, the ironing, and made all the clothing for a family of 200 persons.

The proficiency of their work you can see in the clothes room by themselves and the boys. The experiment begun five years ago has beyond the shadow of a doubt proven a grand success, and Indian children have clearly shown that they can learn that they can be industrious that they can acquire and love the ways of civilization and abhor the darkness of savage ignorance. Now begins another experiment, and one which, be it said to the shame of our government, should never be begun. You see these children before you to-day, transformed by but a few short years of training from the uncultivated offspring of a savage race into bright, intelligent thinking boys and girls, conscious of the change that has been wrought within them, and alike conscious of the condition and needs of their race. They are ripe and ready for the education which every white father and mother would give to their children before setting them adrift in the world. Every year which could be now added to their school life would tell more toward the enlightenment of their minds and the establishment of their characters than perhaps the whole five through which they have just passed.

But what is it now proposed to do with the children? To put them to a test from which every father and mother of our native race would shrink in horror. It is to return them to Indian reservations with all their unhallowed influence, and subject them to the same influences which have wrecked the majority of our own race who have encountered them. Many times within the last two months I have been asked the question, "Will these children return to their parents?" Certainly they will and I am safe in saying there is no boy or girl in this class too proud to own his Indian parents, however ignorant and degraded.

They love their fathers and mothers as your children love you, and the error which we as a nation now make, is not in returning them to their people but in removing them from every protecting and helping influence and subjecting them to surroundings wholly degrading and morally destructive in their nature. Not even employment is secured to them and enforced idleness must be in itself wholly destructive to any ambition for that which is purer and better.

Could the efforts which they are ready and anxious to put forth to-day, but be utilized under a careful and intelligent leadership surrounded by the hallowed influences of Christian civilization, it is no question in my mind that with them and their class lies the salvation of their race and the solution of the vexed Indian problem.

I appeal to you as American citizens, as members of a nation of justice, can you listen to the exercises of these children to day and longer deny them the right to exist? Can you listen to their words of patriotism and longer deny them the right to citizenship and the protection of the stars and stripes we love? Can you hear the expressions of anxiety for the redemption of their race and not feel a touch of the responsibility we assume in saying they are better dead? Exterminate them and the fathers and mothers whom they love from the face of our land, and who of us will be willing to meet them before the bar of eternal justice?

Now, in conclusion, I have a few words for the children, in behalf of myself and the others who have labored among them and learned to love them for the brave and noble efforts they have made in their own behalf. Our work for you is almost ended, and we are about to send you forth to a conflict whose severity you will not realize until it is upon you.

We can no longer shield you from its force, nor support your weakening forces. The enemy you have to fight is a foe that will test your truest steel, and there will be no flaw in your armor, no defect in your defenses no want of vigilance in your guards or waning of your courage but he will reap an advantage and press the conflict with greater severity upon you. The preparation has been short, the battle if you win it, will be long. You are expected to return to your people to be the bearers to them of the truths which shall fit them to live and be useful members of a civilized nation. Upon your success, in a measure at least, depends your existence. Your people who parted from you years ago, with in many cases a sense of the object for which you came here now await your coming with joyful hearts and the greatest hopes for your future and theirs. We who have been your teachers send you forth, feeling that we love you and trust you, and yet with the deepest solicitude lest your feet should slip on the path of life. It is hard to send you forth and be only able to say farewell.' But "Thou shalt not be tempted beyond that thou art able to bear," is said to you as to us. If God has given you a greater battle to fight, he has opened the way for a greater victory for you. You no longer worship a 'Great Spirit' whom you do not know, but you have an intelligent knowledge of the creator of the world, and it is the hope of our hearts that the spirit who created you, the God whose image you bear, the Savior whose blood was shed for you, may be your comforter in grief, your support in weakness, your guard and guide through life, and your savior in death as well as ours.

Our work for you is ended, but your faces and your words will live with us always. Your success will be our joy and the hope is in our hearts that heaven will bring you back to us laden with the reward of life's work well done.

At the conclusion of Mr Coffin's able address Governor Moody being called for made a few remarks of a congratulatory character, followed by Rev R. Your correspondent, through the kindness of Dr Rogers, was then shown through the various buildings and about the grounds where a couple of hours were very profitably spent in viewing what has and is being done for the benefit of the Indian children of this coast. Many enthusiasts consider the formation of these Indian training schools the solution of the vexed Indian problem. Be that as it may the Indian school at Chemawa near Salem is evidently doing a good work and it certainly deserves the encouragement it receives. The officers are all capable, efficient and trustworthy and the institution is we feel warranted in saying conducted with a fidelity not only to its wards but to the people who foot the bills as well.

NEED OF MANUFACTURES.

PORTLAND, July 31

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

... "The ... upon which the prosperity can be placed upon a solid basis, is manufactures." Senator Sherman of Ohio in addressing the board of trade some two months ago made substantially the same remark and I believe it is a conceded fact admitted by all, that the want of home manufactures is the great drawback to general prosperity in Oregon and especially Portland. Now if such is the case and I do not question it why don't our board of trade take the necessary steps to bring this about? I can mention ten men members of the board who could if they would form an organization put in operation a manufactory (say woolen goods or farm machinery) that would be a success with ... This would be a stepping stone to other manufactures and it would be but a short time until the cry of hard times would be heard no more in all our land.

THE ADAMS BOND.

A Case of Many Years' Standing Decided at Last.

Judge Deady Holds that the Sureties on the Bond of W. L. Adams Formerly Collector at Astoria are Not Liable for Money Stolen from Him While Acting as Carrier Thereof.

CIRCUIT COURT DISTRICT OF OREGON

Monday July 27, 1885

The United States v. William L. Adams, Charles I. Parker, Preston W. Gillette. No. 1129. Action on the bond of collector of customs.

LIABILITY OF A SURETY.—The liability of a surety in an official bond is strict juris and he is not to be held responsible for the conduct of his principal beyond the scope of his undertaking reasonably construed.

ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY—AUTHORITY OF.—The assistant secretary of the treasury is not the deputy of the secretary but only his aid and his acts are not valid unless specially authorized by law or prescribed by the secretary (§§ 161, 243, R. S.) but a letter written by him to a collector of customs concerning the deposit of money in his custody will be presumed to have been written by authority of the secretary, until the contrary appears.

CASE IN JUDGMENT.—In 1866 A was collector of customs at Astoria, Or., when and where he received a letter signed by the assistant secretary of the treasury directing him to take $4?,500 in gold coin theretofore received by him in payment of duties and then in his custody to San Francisco and deposit the same with the assistant treasurer. In pursuance of which direction the collector sailed for San Francisco on the current steamer with said money in his trunk, and on the way $20,000 of the same was stolen therefrom without any want of ordinary care and diligence on his part, a portion of which was afterward recovered, so as to reduce the loss to $12,606 28, for which the government sued the collector and his sureties in their bond. The defendants pleaded these facts in defense and claimed they were not liable on the bond to which the plaintiff demurred. Held, (1) That the carriage of this money to San Francisco was no part of the duty of A as collector (§ 2639 R. S.) and therefore his sureties are not responsible for his conduct while so engaged; and (2) That in the transportation of said money A was simply acting as a private carrier for the government and is not liable on his bond for his conduct, or otherwise except for the want of ordinary care and diligence.

DEADY, J.

This action is brought by the United States to recover off the defendants the sum of $12,606 28 with interest at 6 per centum per annum from September 18, 1873.

The complaint alleges that in 1865 the defendant William L. Adams was appointed collector of customs for the district of Oregon and that on September 1st of said year he together with the defendants, Charles I. Parker and Preston W. Gillette, as his sureties executed their bond to the plaintiff in the penal sum of $50,000 conditioned as follows: that the said Adams has truly and faithfully executed and discharged and shall continue truly and faithfully to execute and discharge all the duties of said office according to law; that said Adams failed to keep the condition of said bond, in this that of the moneys received by him as collector aforesaid he failed and refused to pay over to the proper officers of the treasury department the sum of $12,606 28.

The answer of the defendants contains a specific denial of the material allegations of the complaint except the execution of the bond and two special pleas or defenses as follows:

(1) That on and prior to February 3, 1866, the defendant Adams as collector of customs at the port of Astoria, Oregon, had in his custody $46,?00 in gold coin and $1000 in currency belonging to the plaintiff; that a short time prior to said date said Adams had received instructions from the treasury department, through the assistant secretary thereof, to deposit said moneys with the assistant treasurer of the United States, at San Francisco, California, with advice that only the actual expenses incurred in making the deposit and returning to Astoria would be allowed him; that in obedience to said instructions said Adams on February 3, 1866, sailed from Astoria with said money on the steamship Oregon for San Francisco with the intention of personally depositing the same as directed by the department; that said money was secured by said Adams on board the said vessel in the best manner he was able to provide, and carefully watched and guarded by him as much as he was able to do, during the voyage to San Francisco; but that about February 6th, while off the coast of California, $20,500 of said gold coin was stolen from the trunk in which it was deposited by some of the servants employed on said vessel during the temporary and necessary absence of said Adams from his room in which said trunk was kept and without any fault, negligence or carelessness on his part; that all of said money was afterwards recovered from the thieves and paid into the treasury of the United States except the sum of $12,606 28, which is the money sought to be recovered by this action.

(2) That said Adams on February 3 aforesaid had in his possession, as collector of customs aforesaid the money of the United States aforesaid at Astoria, when and where he received instructions from the proper officer of the treasury as aforesaid to receive and carry said moneys as a special carrier from the custom house in Astoria to the assistant treasurer in San Francisco which he then and there undertook to do as aforesaid; that as such carrier said Adams used all proper precautions to safely keep the said moneys so intrusted to him and that the passage by steamer was the easiest and safest way of traveling with moneys from Astoria to San Francisco; that on the passage $20,500 of said gold coin was stolen from said Adams as aforesaid without any fault, negligence or carelessness on his part; that said Adams was not authorized to employ any person to assist him in transporting said money and received no compensation therefor except his necessary expenses from Astoria to San Francisco and return to Astoria, and that through the efforts of said Adams all the money so stolen was recovered and paid to the proper officers of the United States except the sum of $12,606 28 for which this action is brought.

To these two pleas the United States demurs for that the facts stated therein do not constitute a defense to the action.

The argument in support of these pleas is this: (1) The defendant Adams in transporting this money to San Francisco, was not acting as collector of customs at Astoria or in the district of Oregon but as a special or private carrier, at the request of the treasury department and as said carrier or bailee he was only bound to the exercise of ordinary care and diligence and is therefore not responsible for a loss by larceny that occurred notwithstanding the use of such care and diligence; and (2) and although it should be held that Adams is liable for such loss either as a common carrier or collector still he was not then engaged in the performance of a duty within the obligation of his bond or the purview of the statute regulating his duties thereunder and therefore the sureties in such bond are not liable thereon for such loss.

The argument in support of the demurrer is that the assistant secretary of the treasury had no authority to direct the defendant Adams to transport this money to San Francisco and therefore when he removed it from the custom house and undertook to carry it to that place he did so in his own wrong and contrary to the condition of his bond; but if the assistant had such authority then said Adams in obeying his instructions was acting as collector and in either case he and his sureties are liable on their bond for the loss. Accordingly the law is well settled that a larceny or robbery will not excuse the parties to a collector's bond for a failure to pay over all money that may have come to his hands as such collector, citing U. S. v. Prescott, 3 How. 578; U. S. v. Morgan, 11 How. 154; U. S. v. Dashiel, 4 Wall. 182; Boyden v. U. S., 13 Wall. 17.

By § 1 and 2 of the act of September 2, 1789 (1 Stat. 65; §§ 233-34 R. S.), organizing the treasury department, the secretary of the treasury was authorized to appoint an assistant secretary, and by § 1 of the act of March 3, 1849 (9 Stat. 395; R. S.), the provision for the appointment of such assistant was repeated with a specification of certain powers and duties and concluding as follows: "who shall perform all such other duties in the office of the secretary of the treasury now performed by some of his clerks as may be devolved on him by the secretary of the treasury."

By § of the act of March 3, 1857, the appointment of the assistant secretary is given to the president, and by § of the act of March 14, 1864 (13 Stat.), it was further provided that an additional assistant secretary of the treasury should be appointed by the president who shall perform all such duties in the office of the secretary of the treasury belonging to that department as shall be prescribed by the secretary or may be required by law.

[illegible] other. He is not a deputy and cannot therefore act in the name of and for the person [illegible] only with him and under his direction unless otherwise expressly provided by law.

[illegible] whether an assistant secretary appointed under the act of 1849 could be even [illegible] by the secretary to do anything in his department except such acts or duties as were performed at the passage of such act by some of the secretary's clerks. But no such restriction is placed on the power of the secretary as to the assistant authorized by the act of 1864. Any duty pertaining to his office which the secretary may prescribe for him such assistant may do, and it is highly probable that in practice the same rule as followed as to the first assistant. Besides it is hardly to be doubted that in 1866 some clerk in the treasury department was performing the duty of directing collectors as to the deposit of public money in their hands.

But I think that an act done by the assistant and within the authority and power of the department must until the contrary appears be presumed to have been done under the direction of the secretary of the treasury. In U. S. v. Tinker, this court said that where the president was authorized to reserve land for certain military purposes the action of the secretary of war to whose department the subject belonged and the duty pertained would be presumed in the absence of evidence to the contrary to have been authorized by the president.

For the purposes of this case it must be assumed that the assistant secretary was acting in pursuance of the direction of the secretary when he required the defendant Adams to take the moneys to San Francisco and deposit it with the assistant treasurer at that place.

By § 15 of the act of August 6, 1846 (9 Stat., 63; R. S.), persons having public money of the United States and not included in the direction contained in § 9 of said act (§ 3591 R. S.) as was the collector of the district of Oregon might pay the same to the treasurer or assistant treasurer of the United States or such other depositary [illegible] the secretary of the treasury might designate, and [illegible] (§ 3639 R. S.) all public [illegible] collectors of customs, are required to keep safely without loaning, using, depositing in banks, or exchanging for other funds than as allowed by this act all the public money collected by them or otherwise at any time placed in their possession and custody, till the same is ordered by the proper department or officer of the government to be transferred or paid out; and when such orders for transfer or payment are received faithfully and promptly to make the same as directed and to do and perform all other duties as fiscal agents of the government which may be imposed by this or any other act of congress, or by any regulation of the treasury department made in conformity to law.

Admitting that the order of the assistant secretary was given under the direction of the secretary and also that the latter had the authority to direct or employ the defendant Adams to carry this money to San Francisco the sureties maintain it was a duty or service for the discharge or conduct of which they were in no way bound. The undertaking of the defendant, Adams as collector is stated in the condition of his bond as follows: "To truly and faithfully execute and discharge all the duties of his office according to law," which duties were according to § 6 of the act of 1846, supra, "to keep safely all the public money collected by him till the same was duly ordered to be transferred or paid out; and faithfully and promptly to make such transfer or payment when required."

There is no provision here looking to the collector being engaged in the transportation or carriage of public money from one state or district to another for a distance of six or seven hundred miles.

It may be and probably is the duty of a collector under this section to transfer the public money in his possession when so ordered by depositing the same with a depositary in the town or place where his office is situated or its immediate vicinity and that his sureties are liable for any loss that may occur while he is so engaged from either a larceny or robber. To safely keep the public moneys under these circumstances may be a part of the collector's duty to faithfully "transfer" the same when required and if so the undertaking of the sureties makes them responsible for its faithful performance. But I doubt very much whether the duty of a collector to transfer public money in his possession, when required, includes the carrying or transportation of such money to any point beyond the vicinity of the custom house even in his own district as from Astoria to Portland.

The transfer and transportation of money from hand to hand and place to place are business transactions, and parties who undertake for a collector as sureties expect and have a right to expect that when the government engages in any such transaction with reference to the money in the possession of their principal it will do so in a business way and according to business methods.

At the time of this transaction as well as before and since the usual method on this coast of transmitting any quantity of coin was by express and that is the way this money should have been sent to San Francisco. Assuming that there was no designated depositary in Oregon at the time the collector should have been instructed to transfer the amount to Wells, Fargo & Co. at Astoria for transportation to San Francisco who then would have been responsible for its safe delivery at the latter place. No business man in Portland would have thought of sending a clerk or messenger to San Francisco with $40,000 in coin or the tenth part of it and the assistant secretary who directed it to be done in this case unless he did so on the advice of the collector is the primary cause of this loss and morally responsible for it.

The improvidence of this order appears to have soon become known to the department for it was stated and admitted on the argument of the demurrer that within a day or two after the collector had left for San Francisco, a counter command was received at his office directing him to send the money by Wells Fargo & Co.

The law is well established, that the liability of a surety is strict juris and therefore he is not to be held responsible for the conduct of his principal beyond the scope of his undertaking reasonably construed. But the rights and interests of the public to whom the surety has voluntarily become bound for the conduct of his principal are not to be overlooked in the consideration of the matter and therefore courts ought not to be astute or alert as they sometimes appear to have been to raise doubts and start quibbles to save a surety from the otherwise legal consequence of his undertaking. Yet there is nothing in the nature or purpose of his undertaking that should make him liable beyond the fair and reasonable construction of its terms and the provisions of law relating thereto, considered in the light of the surrounding circumstances and with reference to the object of the transaction. U. S. vs. Cheesman, 3 Saw. 429, and cases there cited. Nor do the words of the statute (§ 3639 R. S.) to the effect that the collector shall do and perform all other duties as fiscal agent of the government prescribed by law include the duty of acting as agent for the transportation of this money, without some law directly imposing such duty on him or authorizing the secretary to do so in his discretion. This section it must be noticed includes assistant treasurers, receivers and all other custodians of public money and the provision in question must be construed in each case with reference to the nature of the office and the duties primarily and ordinarily pertaining thereto. An assistant treasurer might very properly be required to receive, keep and pay out public money in any quantity and from any source but not to act as a collector of revenue either under the excise or tariff laws. Nor can a collector of customs be legally charged with the duty and his sureties with the responsibility of receiving, keeping and paying out sums of money, not collected by him as duties on imports. And even if this could be done it would require a still more expanded construction of the provisions to require a collector to act as a carrier of public money at the risk of his sureties.

In U. S. v. Singer, 15 Wall. 122, Mr. Justice Field says: "The official bond of parties undoubtedly covers not merely duties imposed by existing law, but duties belonging to and naturally connected with their office or business imposed by subsequent law. But the new duties should have some relation to or connection with such office or business and not be disconnected from and foreign to both." And in the U. S. v. Cheesman, supra 431, Mr. Justice Sawyer in considering the effect of this very provision says: "We think these words only intended to include such duties as naturally and ordinarily belong to the particular officer giving the bond or have some obvious relation to such duties and such as the sureties acquainted with the duties of the various public officers as usually devolved on them by law might reasonably be expected to contemplate at the time of executing the bond as likely to be imposed upon their principal in case the exigencies of the government should require it, and not those duties which are usually imposed upon and more appropriately belong to an entirely different class of officers."

Neither is the defendant Adams liable on his bond as collector for this loss at all. In carrying this money to San Francisco, he was acting not as collector, but as a carrier for the department. In contemplation of law Collector Adams delivered—transferred—this money to Carrier Adams at Astoria, and thereafter his duty and responsibility concerning it as collector ceased and that as carrier began. His liability as carrier does not arise on his bond as collector nor is it measured by his duty as such. But his liability arises upon the obligation which the law imposes on him as a carrier. If he was a common carrier—a person undertaking for hire, to carry the treasure or goods of all persons indifferently—he would be responsible for the loss although it was the result of a larceny. A common carrier is an insurer of the safe delivery of the goods committed to his care unless the loss is caused by the act of God or the public enemy. Orange Bank v. Brown, 3 Wend. 162; Lawson Con. of Car. § 1; Story on Con. § 920; Story on Bailments § 436.

But Adams was not engaged in the business of a common carrier nor acting as such. He did not hold himself out as a person engaged in the business of carrying treasure or anything else. He only undertook at the request of the department to carry this particular money in consideration of receiving his actual expenses while so engaged, without any deduction of his salary during his absence from his office. He was therefore a private carrier and responsible only as an ordinary bailee for hire, namely for ordinary care and diligence which in this case is alleged to have been duly bestowed on the undertaking. Story on Con. § 920; Story on Bailments § 4; Allen v. Sackrider, 37 N. Y. 341.

Upon the facts stated in these two defences neither the principal nor his sureties in this bond are liable for this loss and the demurrer thereto must be overruled.

Mr. J. F. Watson for the U. S.

Mr. James K. Kelly for the defendant Adams.

Mr. George H. Williams for the defendants Parker and Gillette.

COMMERCIAL.

FRIDAY, July 31.

[illegible] northerly wind. The month closing to-day is not an ill-defined one as far as general trade is concerned. The produce movement has been free for the time of year. About next Thursday we shall present a review of the harvest year accompanied by tables of receipts and shipments. The information will be very valuable as comparison with last year will also be furnished.

Str Columbia took out 500 cs salmon from West Coast Pkg Co and 100 cs from the Washington Pkg Co.

Overland receipts include [illegible] bbls currants, 100 cs canned goods, [illegible] cs lard, [illegible] sks coffee, 10 cs shoulders, [illegible] cs cigars, 18 pkgs tobacco, 50 bbls lard oil, 10 bls bagging.

Shipments by rail to Puget Sound for July included 467 ctls wheat, 4962 bbls flour, [illegible] sks feed, 410 ctls oats, 100 ctls barley, 303 sks middlings, rice, 13 cs lard, 19 pkgs meats, 102 bxs dried fruit, 200 [illegible] salt, 11 pkgs crackers, 80 cs eggs.

PRODUCE RECEIPTS—Last 24 hours 1041 ctls wheat, 10 [illegible] bbls flour, 661 lbs oats, 60 ctls barley, [illegible] lb wool, [illegible] hides, 86 cs eggs, 7 pkgs butter. Also 4500 ctls wheat, 100 bbls flour, 13,650 lbs wool from the eastern section.

Receipts of produce for the month of July were:

WHEAT—All telegraphed markets are weak to lower and the local market shows some sympathy. For valley $1 22½ is best bid and a sale is reported at that. As a rule holders ask more but there is no demand and shippers views must be acceded to to sell. Walla Walla quoted $1 1?. Colfax buyers have been taking some there at 40c un-sacked in the week.

OATS—New suitable for milling sold at 33c. Feed still quoted 30@3?c. At San Francisco barley prices are now above oat quotations. This should help the oat market but heavy stocks continue a great drag.

POTATOES—Receipts ample and market weak at 50c per sack.

BUTTER—Less offering and 20c was paid for good dairy.

EGGS—Weak at 15c.

CHICKENS—Dull and unchanged.

Father and Son.

Buffalo Express.

Bayard Taylor was a great traveler but his father who died the other day at the old homestead at Kennett Square Pa., near to the nineties in age never saw a canal boat locomotive or street car. It is not hard to say which was the fuller life, father's or son's—but it would puzzle the philosophers to decide on the face of things which was the happier one.

Philadelphia Times: Doubt has been expressed in many quarters of would be Minister Keiley's ability to do any work whatever in the public service. MANHOOD AND WOMANHOOD RESTORED by DR. VAN MONCISCAR, Nos. 132 and 134 Third st., Portland, Or.

HALL'S Vegetable Sicilian HAIR RENEWER.

The great popularity of this preparation after its many years of trial should be an assurance, even to the most skeptical, that it is really meritorious. Those who have used HALL'S HAIR RENEWER know that it does all that is claimed.

It causes new growth of hair on bald heads—provided the hair follicles are not dead, which is seldom the case; restores natural color to gray or faded hair; preserves the scalp healthful and clean of dandruff, prevents the hair falling off or changing color, keeps it soft, pliant, lustrous, and causes it to grow long and thick.

HALL'S HAIR RENEWER produces its effects by the healthful influence of its vegetable ingredients, which invigorate and rejuvenate. It is not a dye, and is a delightful article for toilet use. Containing no alcohol, it does not evaporate quickly and dry up the natural oil, leaving the hair harsh and brittle, as do other preparations.

Buckingham's Dye FOR THE WHISKERS

Colors them brown or black, as desired, and is the best dye, because it is harmless; produces a permanent natural color, and, being a single preparation, is more convenient of application than any other.

OUR LONDON LETTER

THE ADAMS BOND.

A Case of Many Years' Standing Decided at Last.

Judge Deady Holds that the Sureties on the Bond of W. L. Adams, Formerly Collector at Astoria, are Not Liable for Money Stolen from Him While Acting as Carrier Thereof.

U. S. CIRCUIT COURT, DISTRICT OF OREGON.

Monday, July 27, 188.

The United States v. William L. Adams, Charles L. Parker, Preston W. Gillette, No. 1123. Action on the bond of collector of customs.

(1) LIABILITY OF A SURETY.—The liability of a surety in an official bond is stricti juris, and he is not to be held responsible for the conduct of his principal beyond the scope of his undertaking, reasonably construed.

(2) ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY—AUTHORITY OF.—The assistant secretary of the treasury is not the deputy of the secretary, but only his aid, and his acts are not valid unless specially authorized by law or prescribed by the secretary (§§ 161, 245 R. S.), but a letter written by him to a collector of customs concerning the deposit of money in his custody will be presumed to have been written by authority of the secretary until the contrary appears.

(3) CASE IN JUDGMENT.—In 1866, A was collector of customs at Astoria, Or., when and where he received a letter signed by the assistant secretary of the treasury directing him to take $46,500 in gold coin theretofore received by him in payment of duties, and then in his custody, to San Francisco, and deposit the same with the assistant treasurer, in pursuance of which direction the collector sailed for San Francisco on the current steamer with said money in his trunk, and on the way $20,000 of the same was stolen therefrom, without any want of ordinary care and diligence on his part, a portion of which was afterward recovered, so as to reduce the loss to $12,696 28, for which the government sued the collector and his sureties on their bond, the defendants pleaded these facts in defense and claimed they were not liable on the bond, to which the plaintiff demurred. Held, (1) That the carriage of this money to San Francisco was no part of the duty of A as collector (§ 3639 R. S.) and therefore his sureties are not responsible for his conduct while so engaged, and (2) That in the transportation of said money, A was simply acting as a private carrier for the government, and is not liable on his bond for his conduct or otherwise except for the want of ordinary care and diligence.

DEADY, J.

This action is brought by the United States to recover off the defendants the sum of $12,696 28 with interest at 6 per centum per annum from September 18, 1875.

The complaint alleges that in 1865 the defendant, William L. Adams was appointed collector of customs for the district of Oregon and that on September 15 of said year he, together with the defendants Charles L. Parker and Preston W. Gillette as his sureties executed their bond to the plaintiff, in the penal sum of $50,000, conditioned as follows: "that the said Adams has truly and faithfully executed and discharged and shall continue truly and faithfully to execute and discharge all the duties of said office according to law;" that said Adams failed to keep the condition of said bond, in this that of the moneys received by him as collector aforesaid he failed and refused to pay over to the proper officers of the treasury department the sum of $12,696 28.

The answer of the defendants contains a specific denial of the material allegations of the complaint, except the execution of the bond, and two special pleas or defenses, as follows:

(1) That on and prior to February 3, 1866, the defendant Adams, as collector of customs, at the port of "Astoria," Oregon had in his custody $46,500 in gold coin and $1000 in currency, belonging to the plaintiff; that a short time prior to said date said Adams had received instructions from the treasury department through the assistant secretary thereof "to deposit said moneys with the assistant treasurer of the United States at San Francisco" California, with advice that only the actual expenses incurred "in making the deposit and returning to Astoria would be allowed him;" that in obedience to said instructions said Adams on February 3, 1866 sailed from Astoria with said money on the steamship Oregon for San Francisco with the intention of personally depositing the same, as directed by the department; that said money was secured by said Adams on board the said vessel "in the best manner he was able to provide and carefully watched and guarded by him as much as he was able to do, during the voyage to San Francisco;" but that about February 6th, while off the coast of California $20,500 of said gold coin was stolen from the trunk in which it was deposited by some of the servants employed on said vessel, "during the temporary and necessary absence of said Adams from his room in which said trunk was kept and without any fault, negligence or carelessness on his part;" that all of said money was afterwards recovered from the thieves and paid into the treasury of the United States except the sum of $12,696 28 which is the money sought to be recovered by this action.

(2) That said Adams on February 3 aforesaid had in his possession as collector of customs aforesaid, the money of the United States aforesaid, at Astoria when and where he received instructions from the proper officer of the treasury, as aforesaid to receive and carry said moneys "as a special carrier" from the custom house in Astoria to the assistant treasurer in San Francisco which he then and there undertook to do as aforesaid, "that as such carrier said Adams used all proper precautions to safely keep the said moneys so intrusted to him;" and that "the passage by steamer was the easiest and safest way of traveling with money from Astoria to San Francisco;" that on the passage $20,500 of said gold coin was stolen from said Adams as aforesaid without any fault, negligence or carelessness on his part; that said Adams was not authorized to employ any person to assist him in transporting said money and received no compensation therefor except his necessary expenses "from Astoria to San Francisco and return to Astoria;" and that through the efforts of said Adams all the money so stolen was recovered and paid to the proper officers of the United States except the sum of $12,696 28 for which this action is brought.

To these two pleas the United States demurs, for that the facts stated therein do not constitute a defense to the action.

The argument in support of these pleas is this: (1) The defendant Adams in transporting this money to San Francisco was not acting as collector of customs at Astoria or in the district of Oregon but as a special or private carrier, at the request of the treasury department and that as said carrier or bailee he was only bound to the exercise of ordinary care and diligence, and is therefore not responsible for a loss by larceny that occurred notwithstanding the use of such care and diligence; and (2) and although it should be held that Adams is liable for such loss either as a common carrier or collector still he was not then engaged in the performance of a duty within the obligation of his bond or the purview of the statute regulating his duties thereunder and therefore the sureties in such bond are not liable thereon for such loss.

The argument in support of the demurrer is first, that the assistant secretary of the treasury had no authority to direct the defendant, Adams, to transport this money to San Francisco and therefore when he removed it from the custom house and undertook to carry it to that place he did so in his own wrong and contrary to the condition of his bond; but if the assistant had such authority then said Adams in obeying his instruction was acting as collector and in either case he and his sureties are liable on their bond for the loss accordingly, for the law is well settled that a larceny or robbery will not excuse the parties to a collector's bond for a failure to pay over all money that may have come into his hands as such collector, citing U. S. v. Prescott, 3 How. 578; U. S. v. Morgan, 11 How. 154; U. S. v. Dashiel, 4 Wall. 182; Boyden v. U. S., 13 Wall. 17.

By §§ 1 and 2 of the act of September 2, 1789 (1 Stat. 65, §§ 233-34 R. S.) organizing the treasury department the secretary of the treasury was authorized to appoint an assistant secretary; and by § 10 of the act of March 3, 1849 (9 Stat. 396; § 245 R. S.) the provision for the appointment of such assistant was repeated with a specification of certain powers and duties and concluding as follows: "who shall perform all such other duties in the office of the secretary of the treasury, now performed by some of his clerks, as may be devolved on him by the secretary of the treasury."

By § 7 of the act of March 3, 1857 (11 Stat. 220) the appointment of the assistant secretary was given to the president; and by § 3 of the act of March 14, 1864 (13 Stat. 26) it was further provided that "an additional assistant secretary of the treasury should be appointed by the president who shall perform all such duties in the office of the secretary of the treasury belonging to that department as shall be prescribed by the secretary of the treasury or as may be required by law."

An assistant is one who stands by and helps or aids another. He is not a deputy, and cannot therefore act in the name of and for the person he assists, but only with him and under his direction, unless otherwise expressly provided by law. It is a question whether an assistant secretary appointed under the act of 1849 could be even authorized by the secretary to do anything in his department except such acts or duties as were performed at the passage of such act by some of the secretary's clerks. But no such restraint is imposed on the power of the secretary as to the assistant authorized by the act of 1864. Any duty pertaining to his office which the secretary may prescribe for him, such assistant may do; and it is highly probable that in practice the same rule was followed as to the first assistant. Besides it is hardly to be doubted that in 1849 some clerk in the treasury department was performing the duty of directing collectors in the disposition of public money in their hands.

But I think that an act done by the assistant, and within the authority and power of the department must until the contrary appears be presumed to have been done under the direction of the secretary of the treasury. In U. S. v. Tichenor, 8 Saw. 1?2 this court said that where the president was authorized to reserve land for certain military purposes the action of the secretary of war to whose department the subject belonged and the duty pertained would be presumed in the absence of evidence to the contrary to have been authorized by the president.

For the purpose then of this case, it must be presumed that the assistant secretary was acting in pursuance of the direction of the secretary when he required the defendant Adams to take this money to San Francisco and deposit it with the assistant treasurer at that place.

By § 5 of the act of August 6, 1846 (9 Stat. 59), [illegible] persons having public moneys of the United States, and not included in the directions contained in § 9 of said act (§ 3615 R. S.), as was not the collector of the district of Oregon, might pay the same to the treasurer or assistant treasurer of the United States or such other depositary, constituted in pursuance of the law, as the secretary of the treasury might designate, and by § 6 of said act (§ 3639 R. S.) all public officers, including collectors of customs, "are required to keep safely, without loaning, using, depositing in banks, or exchanging for other funds than as allowed by this act, all the public money collected by them, or otherwise at any time placed in their possession and custody till the same is ordered by the proper department or officer of the government to be transferred or paid out, and when such orders for transfer or payment are received, faithfully and promptly to make the same as directed, and to do and perform all other duties as fiscal agents of the government which may be imposed by this or any other act of congress, or by any regulation of the treasury department made in conformity to law."

Admitting that the order of the assistant secretary was given under the direction of the secretary, and also that the latter had the authority to direct or employ the defendant, Adams, to carry this money to San Francisco the sureties maintain it was a duty or service for the discharge or conduct of which they were in no way bound. The undertaking of the defendant, Adams, as collector is stated in the condition of his bond as follows: "To truly and faithfully execute and discharge all the duties of his office according to law;" which duties were, according to § 6 of the act of 1846, supra, "to keep safely * * * all the public money collected by him till the same was duly ordered "to be transferred or paid out;" and "faithfully and promptly make such transfer or payment when required."

There is no provision here looking to the collector being engaged in the transportation or carriage of public money from one state or district to another for a distance of six or seven hundred miles.

It may be and probably is the duty of a collector under this section to transfer the public money in his possession when so ordered by depositing the same with a depositary in the town or place where his office is situated, or its immediate vicinity, and that his sureties are liable for any loss that may occur while he is so engaged from either a larceny or robbery. To safely keep the public money under these circumstances may be a part of the collector's duty to faithfully "transfer" the same when required, and if so, the undertaking of the sureties makes them responsible for its faithful performance. But I doubt very much whether the duty of a collector "to transfer" public money in his possession when required, includes the carrying or transportation of such money to any point beyond the vicinity of the custom house, even in his own district, as from Astoria to Portland.

The transfer and transportation of money from hand to hand and place to place are business transactions and parties who undertake for a collector as sureties, expect and have a right to expect, that when the government engages in any such transaction, with reference to the money in the possession of their principal, it will do so in a business way and according to business methods.

At the time of this transaction, as well as before and since, the usual method on this coast of transmitting any quantity of coin, was by express, and that is the way this money should have been sent to San Francisco. Assuming that there was no designated depositary in Oregon at the time, the collector should have been instructed to transfer the amount to Wells, Fargo & Co. at Astoria for transportation to San Francisco, who then would have been responsible for its safe delivery at the latter place. No business man in Portland would have thought of sending a clerk or messenger to San Francisco with $40,000 in coin, or the tenth part of it, and the assistant secretary who directed it to be done in this case, unless he did so on the advice of the collector, is the primary cause of this loss and morally responsible for it.

The improvidence of this order appears to have soon become known to the department, for it was stated and admitted on the argument of the demurrer, that within a day or two after the collector had left for San Francisco, a counter command was received at his office, directing him to send the money by Wells, Fargo & Co.

The law is well established, that the liability of a surety is stricti juris, and therefore he is not to be held responsible for the conduct of his principal beyond the scope of his undertaking, reasonably construed. But the rights and interests of the public to whom the surety has voluntarily become bound for the conduct of his principal, are not to be overlooked in the consideration of the matter, and therefore courts ought not to be astute or alert, as they sometimes appear to have been, to raise doubts and start quibbles, to save a surety from the otherwise legal consequence of his undertaking. Yet there is nothing in the nature or purpose of his undertaking that should make him liable beyond the fair and reasonable construction of its terms and the provisions of law relating thereto, considered in the light of the surrounding circumstances and with reference to the object of the transaction. U. S. vs Cheesman, 3 Saw. 439, and cases there cited. Nor do the words of the statute (§ 3639 R. S.) to the effect that the collector shall "do and perform all other duties as fiscal agent of the government" prescribed by law include the duty of acting as agent for the transportation of this money, without some law directly imposing such duty on him or authorizing the secretary to do so in his discretion. This section, it must be noticed, includes assistant treasurers, receivers and all other custodians of public money and the provision in question must be construed in each case with reference to the nature of the office and the duties primarily and ordinarily pertaining thereto. An assistant treasurer might very properly be required to receive, keep and pay out public money in any quantity, and from any source, but not to act as a collector of revenue either under the excise or tariff laws. Nor can a collector of customs be legally charged with the duty and his sureties with the responsibility of receiving, keeping and paying out sums of money not collected by him as duties on imports. And even if this could be done, it would require a still more expanded construction of the provisions to require a collector to act as a carrier of public money at the risk of his sureties.

In U. S. v. Singer, 15 Wall. 122, Mr. Justice Field says: "The official bond of parties undoubtedly covers not merely duties imposed by existing law but duties belonging to and naturally connected with their office of business, imposed by subsequent law. But the new duties should have some relation to or connection with such office or business and not be disconnected from and foreign to both." And in the U. S. v. Cheesman, supra 431, Mr. Justice Sawyer in considering the effect of this very provision says: "We think these words only intended to include such duties as naturally and ordinarily belong to the particular officer giving the bond or have some obvious relation to such duties and such as the sureties acquainted with the duties of the various public officers as usually devolved on them by law might reasonably be expected to contemplate at the time of executing the bond as likely to be imposed upon their principal in case the exigencies of the government should require it, and not those duties which are usually imposed upon, and more appropriately belong to, an entirely different class of officers."

Neither is the defendant, Adams, liable on his bond as collector for this loss, if at all. In carrying this money to San Francisco he was acting not as collector, but as a carrier for the department. In contemplation of law Collector Adams delivered—transferred—the money to Carrier Adams at Astoria, and thereafter his duty and responsibility concerning it as collector, ceased, and that as carrier began. His liability as carrier does not arise on his bond as collector, nor is it measured by his duty as such. But his liability arises upon the obligation which the law imposes on him as a carrier. If he was a common carrier—a person undertaking for hire to carry the treasure or goods of all persons indifferently—he would be responsible for the loss, although it was the result of a larceny. A common carrier is an insurer of the safe delivery of the goods committed to his care, unless the loss is caused by the act of God or the public enemy. Orange Bank v. Brown, 3 Wend. 162; Lawson's Con. of Car. § 13; Story on Con. § 920; Story on Bailments, § 496.

But Adams was not engaged in the business of a common carrier nor acting as such. He did not hold himself out as a person engaged in the business of carrying treasure or anything else. He only undertook, at the request of the department, to carry this particular money in consideration of receiving his actual expenses while so engaged, without any deduction of his salary during his absence from his office. He was therefore a private carrier and responsible only as an ordinary bailee for hire, namely for ordinary care and diligence, which in this case is alleged to have been duly bestowed on the undertaking. Story on Con. 920; Story on Bailments § 457; Allen v. Sackrider, 37 N. Y. 341.

Upon the facts stated in these two defences, neither the principal nor his sureties in this bond are liable for this loss, and the demurrer thereto must be overruled.

WHEAT—All telegraphed markets are weak to lower, and the local market shows some sympathy. For valley $1 22½ is best bid and a sale is reported at that. As a rule holders ask more, but there is no demand and shippers' views must be acceded to to sell. Walla Walla quoted $1 15. Colfax buyers have been taking some there at 40c un sacked, in the week.

OATS—New suitable for milling sold at 35c. Feed still quoted 30@33c. At San Francisco barley prices are now above oat quotations. This should help the oat market but heavy stocks continue a great drag.

POTATOES—Receipts ample and market weak at 50c per sack.

BUTTER—Less offering and 20c was paid for good dairy.

EGGS—Weak at 15c.

CHICKENS—Dull and unchanged.

Father and Son

Buffalo Express.

Bayard Taylor was a great traveler, but his father who died the other day at the old home stead at Kennett Square, Pa., near to the nineties in age, never saw a canal boat, locomotive or street car. It is not hard to say which was the nobler life, father's or son's—but it would puzzle the philosophers to decide on the face of things which was the happier one.

SKIN DISEASES SWAYNE'S OINTMENT [illegible]

MANHOOD AND WOMANHOOD RESTORED by DR. VAN MONCISCAR, Nos. 132 and 134 Third st., Portland, Or.

HALL'S Vegetable Sicilian HAIR RENEWER.

The great popularity of this preparation, after its many years of test, should be an assurance, even to the most skeptical, that it is really meritorious. Those who have used HALL'S HAIR RENEWER know that it does all that is claimed.

It causes new growth of hair on bald heads—provided the hair follicles are not dead, which is seldom the case; restores natural color to gray or faded hair; preserves the scalp healthful and clean of dandruff, prevents the hair falling off or changing color; keeps it soft, pliant, lustrous, and causes it to grow long and thick.

HALL'S HAIR RENEWER produces its effects by the healthful influence of its vegetable ingredients, which invigorate and rejuvenate. It is not a dye, and is a delightful article for toilet use. Containing no alcohol, it does not evaporate quickly and dry up the natural oil, leaving the hair harsh and brittle, as do other preparations.

Buckingham's Dye FOR THE WHISKERS

Colors them brown or black, as desired, and is the best dye, because it is harmless; produces a permanent natural color, and, being a single preparation, is more convenient of application than any other.
